PREFACE

Written since the publication of the General Report of the Classical Investigation conducted by the American Classical League, this book will be found in accord with the spirit of the recommendations of Dean West and his co-investigators.

Lessons I to C, inclusive, provide a well-rounded, thorough, and interesting first-year course. The presentation of the subjunctive mood, deponent verbs, participles, and certain other topics is postponed to the second part of the book — the last twenty lessons.

Although the forms of the subjunctive present little difficulty, the actual use of the mood requires considerable analytical and logical power. For this reason many teachers prefer to defer the study of the subjunctive to the third half year. The authors are in full sympathy with this view. But teachers who find it necessary to include some of the more important uses of the subjunctive in the work of the first year will proceed with the lessons. By so doing they will make a beginning of work that more properly belongs to the second year.

Some of the characteristic features of this book are presented in the paragraphs that follow:

ARRANGEMENT OF LESSONS. The arrangement of material on the printed pages is a new and, as the authors believe, a valuable feature. Learning the inflections and the vocabulary presented in the lesson is a prerequisite to the real mastery of the exercises. The disadvantage of presenting the inflected forms and the vocabularies on the same page as the exercises for translation is obvious. The lesson arrangement of this book makes it possible for teachers to test their pupils' mastery of first-page fundamentals. Turning back the page to get the needed form or the needed word should be considered bad practice in the classroom.

DEVELOPMENT OF NEW SUBJECTS. A new subject is first introduced very simply; a few lessons farther on, it is taken up again in a more comprehensive way. In later lessons, the same subject is treated carefully in its relation to other subjects in a still more comprehensive manner. Attention is called to the treatment of Indirect Statement as an illustration of the method of development of the various important topics.

STORIES IN LATIN. The stories in Latin are, in general, classical in form and theme. They are carefully graded to keep pace with the developing powers of the pupils. The incidents and exploits narrated and the characters that figure in them are well adapted to serve as an inspiration to physical courage and to high-minded, patriotic attitudes on the part of the pupils.

RELATION OF LATIN TO ENGLISH. The importance of Latin as a factor in the English language is given full recognition. A few attractive devices for interesting pupils in related Latin and English word study are followed by a simple, carefully wrought-out scheme for word building and word definition in Latin and English. Related English words are, as a rule, not given to the pupil, but he is taught to get them for himself. If the words are compound, he is encouraged to acquire skill in understanding their real meanings through the elements that compose them. The use of the notebook as a means of reinforcing such studies is emphasized and explained.

AURAL INSTRUCTION. The value of appeal to the ear in classroom practice is recognized in the use of varied exercises intended to assist the pupil in becoming ear-minded as well as eye-minded in his study of Latin. Translation of Latin sentences from dictation, answering in Latin questions asked in Latin, acquiring the correct sounds and the proper accent of words, getting the thought of brief sentences through appropriate phrasing, emphasis and inflection of voice, as brought out by the teacher's reading — all these contribute to pleasure and progress in Latin study.

THE VOCABULARY. Exclusive of proper nouns, the number of words in the general vocabulary is about eleven hundred. Only the words occurring on the first page of the two-page lessons, about six hundred in all, are to be memorized. These six hundred words include over 90 per cent of the words required for the first year by the Latin syllabus of New York State. Opportunity for full mastery of the required vocabularies is afforded by the limited number of new words found in the individual lesson (an average of fewer than six), and by the recurrence at regular intervals of vocabulary reviews presented in the form of time-limited tests.

In presenting the various topics, the authors have steadily kept in mind the interests of the adolescent boy and girl.

No other high school subject affords a more fruitful field for the successful application of the well-known laws of apperception. In his mastery of forms, whether of noun, pronoun, adjective or verb, as the pupil advances from lesson to lesson, he meets very little that is really new and strange, and much that is old and familiar.

For example, the learner finds that, with relatively few exceptions, the accusative singulars of all declensions are either brothers or first cousins. The genitive plurals are as closely related. The dative and ablative plurals may be divided into two great clans.

There can be no substitute for the careful preparation of each day's lesson by the pupil; but there may be added romance and high adventure even in the study of Latin grammar, a thrill in meeting the unexpected even in so prosaic a thing as a case ending.

A pupil who has repeatedly stumbled over the present subjunctive of the first conjugation will rarely fail to give the correct form, if his attention is called to the fact that the elusive vowel is the same e whose acquaintance he made in the future tense of the third and fourth conjugations. And to encounter in the present subjunctive of the second, third, and fourth conjugations the very vowel a that caused him so much trouble in such future forms as regam, capiam, and audiam, is like catching sight of the face of a friend amidst a crowd of strangers.

The authors are under obligation to Mr. Evan R. Chesterman of Richmond, Virginia, whose kindly but keen criticisms have added greatly to the usefulness of the book; to Dr. Walter A. Montgomery, of the College of William and Mary, who gave the authors the benefit of his wide experience and careful scholarship; and to Ethel Foster, who not only performed the laborious task of typing and retyping the whole book, but who rendered expert assistance in countless other ways. Our grateful acknowledgment is also made to Mr. W. L. Carr, Associate Professor of Latin in the University of Michigan, and to Dr. Roy J. Deferrari, Professor of Latin, The Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., for reading the proofs of the book and making valuable suggestions; and finally to Mr. Richard A. Metcalf, Director of the High School and College Department of the Johnson Publishing Company, whose generous assistance and unfailing interest have been a constant inspiration to the authors.

INTRODUCTORY LESSON

The following topics are given for purposes of reference, review, and summary of classroom experience. The pupil should receive his first lessons in pronunciation of vowels and consonants, quantities of syllables and accents, directly from his teacher, as a necessary part of his daily assignments.

ALPHABET

The Latin alphabet lacks j and w. Otherwise it is like the English. But k, y, z, are rare.

VOWELS

The Latin vowels are either long or short. The sound of a long vowel is always the same. A short vowel is sounded like a long vowel, but only half the time is given to its pronunciation. Long vowels are marked (ˉ).

LONG

ā as in far: māter, mother
ē as in they: lĕx, law
ī as in machine: lĭber, free ō as in note: mōs, custom ū as oo in moon: mūs, mouse

SHORT

a as in polka: amat, he loves e as in pen: et, and i as in tin: in, in o as in harmony: domus, home u as oo in look: ubi, where

DIPHTHONGS

The Latin diphthong is always long. Its sound is always the same.

ae as ai in aisle: laetus, happy
au as ou in out: laudō, I praise ei as ei in eight: hei! ah! woe!
eu as eu in feud: heu! alas!
oe as oi in foil: proelium, battle ui almost ui in quick: cui, to whom

CONSONANTS

In Latin a consonant has only one sound. Most consonants are pronounced as in English, but pronounce

c like c in cap: caput, head

g like g in get (never as in gem): gentēs, races

i consonant (usually a consonant at the beginning of a word, before a vowel, and within a word between vowels) like y in yes: iaciō, I hurl, aiō, I say

t always like t, not like sh (motion): ōrātiō, oration

s like s in yes: Caesar, Caesar

v like w in wind: veniō, I come x like ks, never like gz or z: rēxit, he ruled ch like k in polka: pulcher, beautiful bs like ps in camps: urbs, city

bt like pt in optic: obtimeō, I obtain

QUANTITY OF VOWELS

When memorizing a Latin word, learn the long vowels. Whenever you write a Latin word place over every long vowel the mark (ˉ). Most long vowels are learned only by careful observation, study, oral practice, and repeated writing. These rules are useful:

- 1 A vowel before -nf and -ns is long.
- 2 A vowel before -nd and -nt is short.
- 3 A vowel before another vowel or h is short.

SYLLABLES

There are as many syllables in a Latin word as there are vowels and diphthongs: fi-li-a, hor-tus, pu-el-la, lau-dō, e-quus (in the combination qu, both q and u are consonants).

In the division of a word into syllables (1) a single consonant goes with the vowel that follows it: fi-li-a; (2) when two or more consonants are between two vowels, as many consonants usually go with the vowel following as can be pronounced with it: ser-vus, op-pi-dum, mōn-strō; (3) x is joined with the preceding consonant: dux-it; (4) in dividing a compound word into syllables, the division must show the parts which make the compound: ab-ri-pi-ō.

QUANTITY OF SYLLABLES

A syllable is long if it contains:

- 1 a diphthong,
- 2 a long vowel,
- 3 a short vowel followed by two or more consonants separately pronounced, or by x or z.

Other syllables are short.

ACCENT

Placing the accent of Latin words is very simple and regular, if you know the length of the syllables.

1 Words of two syllables are accented on the first syllable: pú-er, hór-tus.

2 Words of more than two syllables are accented on the next to the last syllable, if it is long; if the next to the last syllable is short, the one before it is accented: Rō-mā-nus, per-mít-tō, fi-li-a.

GENDER

With the help of the following rules and those that go with each of the five declensions, the gender of most Latin nouns may be determined. The gender of nouns that come under none of the rules must be learned.

- 1 Names of males are masculine.
 - 2 Names of females are feminine.
 - 3 Names of rivers, winds, months, and mountains are masculine.
 - 4 Names of countries, cities, islands, and trees are feminine.
 - 5 Abstract and collective nouns are feminine.

Latin derives its name from Latium, the flatlands, one of several little kingdoms into which ancient Italy was divided. Latium embraced much of that fertile plain now called the Campagna. Rome, according to tradition, was founded in the eighth century (753) B.C., and was within the boundaries of Latium.

Beginning as a small village on a low hill beside the river Tiber, Rome rapidly grew in population, territory, and wealth until her power was supreme far beyond her seven hills. The peoples of Italy, Greece, Asia Minor, Northern Africa, Spain, France, Britain, in fact, most of western Europe, became subjects of the proud city on the Tiber. Roman officials, traders, travelers, and colonists everywhere followed the trail of the conquering legions, and with all of them went the Latin language.

For hundreds of years Latin was the official language of the Roman Empire. Educated men and women in all parts of Rome's far-flung domain spoke and wrote excellent Latin. The great mass of people also learned the language which was the everyday speech of the Roman legionary, trader, and colonist. Latin seemed destined to be a common tongue of the western world. Even after the break-up of the Roman Empire, Latin continued for a thousand years to be the language of literature, science, art, diplomacy, and religion.

But languages, like people, are affected by time and by their surroundings. With the passing years there have developed, in Italy, Spain, and France, national languages, each with a character of its own, yet closely akin one to the other and especially to Latin, the parent of them all.

About ninety per cent of the words in Italian, French, and Spanish are derived from Latin. It is evident that a knowledge of Latin is a great help to the mastery of these languages. More than half the words that we commonly use in English come directly or indirectly (through Italian or French) from Latin. Every year the percentage of Latin words in English is being increased. Professional and business men — scholars, scientists, inventors, and even advertisers — when in need of a new word, draw upon the treasures of Latin and, in a lesser degree, of Greek. The technical vocabularies of the arts and of the sciences — medicine, law, theology, engineering, dentistry, pharmacy — are largely Latin. Some knowledge of Latin is desirable for those who are engaged in the arts and in the practice of the various professions.

For those who have even a moderate knowledge of Latin, the precious hoard of English words is greatly increased and thousands of these words take on new or clearer meanings. A study of Latin not only enriches the learner's vocabulary, but also helps in the spelling of many English words. It affords a clearer understanding of language structure; it makes one a keen critic of what he writes himself and of the literary work of others; and finally, it acquaints him with some of the best literature, the great events, personages, myths, and legends of Roman and Greek times. Without some knowledge of these important and interesting matters, no one can understand, and therefore appreciate, the art, literature, and life of his own day.

FIRST YEAR LATIN

PRESENT ACTIVE INDICATIVE OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION

- 1 Verb, portō, I carry Present stem, portā-

SINGULAR

portō, I carry, am carrying, do carry portās, you carry, are carrying, do carry portat, he, she, it carries, is carrying, does carry portāmus, we carry, are carrying, do carry portātis, you carry, are carrying, do carry portant, they carry, are carrying, do carry

PLURAL

Each of these verb forms consists of two elements:

- 1 Portā-, the present stem, which indicates the general meaning of the word. In portō the -ā of the stem has disappeared.
- 2 An ending which indicates the person and the number.
- 2 Memorize the foregoing Latin verb forms and their equivalents in English, also the following table:

SINGULAR

-ō, I
-s, you (sing.)
-t, he (she, it)

PLURAL

-mus, we
-tis, you (plur.)
-nt, they

3 VOCABULARY

ambulō (ambulā-), I walk	nōn, not
et, and	portō (portā-), I carry, bring
habitō (habitā-), I live, dwell	sed, but
labōrō (labōrā-), I work	vocō (vocā-), I call, summon

Note. The marks for long vowels should always be written as a part of the Latin word.

4 Pronounce the Latin, giving the correct sound of every vowel and the proper accent of every word; translate.

1 portant	11 labōrat
2 portō	12 labōrās
3 portātis	13 ambulātis
4 portat	14 habitant
5 portāmus	15 ambulō
6 portās	16 vocant
7 ambulat	17 labōrāmus
8 vocātis	18 vocās
9 ambulant	19 habitō
10 habitāmus	20 labōrant

5 1 you (sing.) carry	11 they work
2 he carries	12 you (plur.) work
3 we carry	13 you (sing.) walk
4 they carry	14 he lives
5 I carry	15 we walk
6 you (plur.) carry	16 he calls
7 they walk	17 I work
8 you (sing.) call	18 they call
9 he walks	19 we live
10 I live	20 he works

- 6 (a) Ambulās et portās; labōrant sed ambulāmus.
 (b) Labōrat et vocat; ambulātis sed nōn labōrātis.
 (c) Vocant sed nōn vocāmus; ambulant sed nōn portant.

GALLĪNA ET GALLĪNULAE, hen and chickens

LESSON II

SUBJECT NOMINATIVE — AGREEMENT OF VERB WITH SUBJECT

VOCABULARY

agricola, farmer

nauta, sailor

rēgina, queen

filia, daughter

puella, girl

serva, slave

Pronounce and examine the following sentences:

Nauta labōrat, the sailor works.

Nautae labōrant, the sailors work.

Nauta, nominative singular, ending -a, is the subject of labōrat.

Nutae, nominative plural, ending -ae, is the subject of labōrant.

Labōrat is in the third person singular because its subject nauta is in the third person singular; labōrant also agrees with its subject nautae.

AGRICOLA LABŌRAT, the farmer works

8 Rule. The subject of a finite verb is in the nominative case.

9 Rule. A finite verb agrees with its subject in number and person.

RELATED ENGLISH WORDS

Give the Latin word suggested by each of the following: portal, import, export; vocal, vocative, vocalize; nautical; agriculture; labor, elaborate; habitation, inhabit; amble, ambulance; perambulator.

Notes. When the subject is expressed the personal ending is not separately translated.

There are no Latin words for a, an, the. When translating into English, use the one that fits the best.

Labor ipse voluptās — Work itself is a pleasure.

LESSON III

PREDICATE NOMINATIVE OF NOUNS AND ADJECTIVES — PRESENT INDICATIVE OF Sum

13

VOCABULARY

bona, good	parva, small
insula, island	silva, forest
longa, long	via, road, way, street
magna, large	in viā, in (on) the road
sum, I am

14 The verb sum is irregular.

Verb, sum, I am

PRESENT INDICATIVE

SINGULAR	PLURAL
sum, I am	sumus, we are es, you are	estis, you are est, he, she, it is	sunt, they are

15 Pronounce and examine the following sentences:

- 1 Numa est agricola, Numa is a farmer.
- 2 Filiae sunt rēgīnae, the daughters are queens.
- 3 Puella est parva, the girl is small.
- 4 Filiae sunt bonae, the daughters are good.

In sentence 1, agricola is in the nominative singular to agree with the subject, Numa. In sentence 2, rēgīnae is in the nominative plural to agree with the subject, filiae. Agricola and rēgīnae, as used in these sentences, are called predicate nouns, or predicate nominatives. Each of the adjectives, parva and bonae, in sentences 3 and 4, agrees with the subject of its sentence and is called a predicate adjective.

16 Rule. A predicate noun has the same case as the subject of the verb.

17 Rule. A predicate adjective has the same gender, number, and case as the subject of the verb.

AURAL EXERCISE

(Pupils close books. Let the teacher read the Latin of paragraph 18 to the pupils sentence by sentence, distinctly, with strict attention to the sounds of the vowels, quantity of vowels and length of syllables as affecting accent.)

Translate each of the foregoing Latin sentences at hearing. After translating a sentence from Latin to English, reproduce it in Latin orally. In giving the Latin sentence, strive to show its meaning by appropriate emphasis and tone of voice. Imitate the teacher's reading of the Latin.

Note. An adjective may modify its noun (1) directly, puella bona, or (2) in the predicate, puella est bona. In the latter case, the adjective is called a predicate adjective.

LESSON IV

PRESENT INDICATIVE PASSIVE OF Portō — PREDICATE NOMINATIVE OF NOUNS AND ADJECTIVES (Continued)

21 Verb, portō, I carry

Present stem, portā-

SINGULAR

PLURAL

portor, I am carried portāmur, we are carried portāris, you are carried portāmini, you are carried portātur, he, she, it is carried portantur, they are carried

Note. Sometimes the passive present forms are translated, I am being carried, you are being carried, etc.

Each of these verb forms consists of two elements:

1 Portā-, the present stem, indicating the general meaning of the word.

2 An ending indicating the passive voice, the person, and the number.

These endings are added directly to the present stem. In portor the ā of the stem has disappeared.

22 Following is a table of the personal endings of the passive voice:

SINGULAR

PLURAL

-r(or)

-mur

-ris

-mini

-tur

-ntur

23

VOCABULARY

appellō (appellā-), I call, name
cūr, why?

Octāvia, Octavia, a woman's name

Galba, -ae, Galba

putō (putā-), I think

Iūlia, Julia, a woman's name timida, cowardly, fearful nūntiō (nūntiā-), I announce, declare ubi, where

24 Rule. Predicate nouns and predicate adjectives, with verbs in the passive voice, agree with their subjects in accordance with paragraphs 16, 17.

25

WORD ORDER

In a simple declarative Latin sentence the verb usually is placed at the end. This order may be changed for purposes of emphasis.

A Latin adjective usually follows directly the word it modifies.

EXERCISES

| 7 Puellae vocantur timidae. | 15 Ubi sunt puellae bonae? |
| 8 Silva nōn parva putātur. | 16 Ubi est Galba? |

27

- 1 We are called queens.
- 2 You are thought a cowardly girl.
- 3 You are called good daughters.
- 4 The long roads are thought good.
- 5 Why are the girls called cowardly?
- 6 He is not thought a farmer.
- 7 Where is the good girl?
- 8 The forests are not large.

28 Give the Latin word from which each of the following is derived, and use each word given below correctly in an English sentence:

Insular, silvan, appellation, filial, vocation, longitude, portable.

LESSON V

ACCUSATIVE AS DIRECT OBJECT

29 Study the following sentences:

- 1 Rēgīna filiam vocat, the queen calls (her) daughter.
- 2 Rēgīnae filiās vocant, the queens call (their) daughters.

In English, the position of a noun in a sentence usually determines its case. In the English of sentence 1, daughter is the direct object of calls. If we change the order of the words to The daughter calls the queen, queen becomes the object, and daughter the subject.

In Latin, the ending of a noun, not its position in a sentence, usually determines its case. If we change the order of the Latin words in sentence 1 to Filiam rēgīna vocat, but do not change the endings of filiam and rēgīna, filiam remains the direct object and rēgīna the subject. The only difference between the meanings of the two sentences is that in Rēgīna filiam vocat, rēgīna is emphasized, and in Filiam rēgīna vocat, filiam is emphasized. In English, emphasis is often indicated by italics or by underlining.

The case of the direct object of a verb in Latin is called the accusative, not the objective, as in English. The ending in the singular is -am, in the plural -ās.

30 Rule. The direct object of a verb is in the accusative case.

Note. The objective cases of some English pronouns end in m: him, them, whom.

IULIA ET OCTAVIA

Iūlia et Octāvia in Italiā¹ habitant. Italia est patria. Est terra magna. Iūlia et Octāvia Italiam amant. Puellae in viīs ambulant. Silvās magnās intrant. Agricola in silvīs labōrat. Puellās appellat. Puellae nōn sunt timidae. Ad (to) agricolam aquam portant.

34 Answer these questions in Latin. Use complete sentences in your answers.

- 1 Ubi habitant Iūlia et Octāvia?
- 2 Cūr amant Italiam?
- 3 Ubi labōrat agricola?
- 4 Ubi ambulat Octāvia?

¹In the English prepositional phrases, in the water, on the water; in the roads, on the roads, the nouns are in the objective case. In the Latin prepositional phrases, in aquā, in (on) the water; in viīs, in (on) the roads, the nouns are not in the accusative (objective) case. The Latin preposition in (English in or on) requires a case called ablative. In the singular the ablative case ends in -ā; in the plural, -īs.

LESSON VI

IMPERFECT ACTIVE AND PASSIVE INDICATIVE OF Portō — HOW TO ASK QUESTIONS IN LATIN

35 Verb, portō, I carry Present stem, portā-

IMPERFECT INDICATIVE

ACTIVE

portābam, *I was carrying*¹ portābās, you were carrying portābat, he, she, it was carrying portābāmus, we were carrying portābātis, you were carrying portābant, they were carrying

PASSIVE

portābar, I was carried portābāris, you were carried portābātur, he, she, it was carried portābāmur, we were carried portābāmini, you were carried portābantur, they were carried

Each of these forms consists of three elements:

1 portā-, the present stem; 2 ba-, the sign of the indicative imperfect; 3 the personal ending (-m is the ending of the first person singular active, not -ō).

36 TABULAR FORM (for blackboard)

ACTIVE VOICE

PASSIVE VOICE

Present Stem	Mode and Tense Sign	Personal Ending	Present Stem	Mode and Tense Sign	Personal Ending

37 VOCABULARY

expectō (expectā-), I wait for -ne, enclitic, indicates a question laudō (laudā-), I praise pugnō (pugnā-), I fight nāvigō (nāvigā-), I sail quis, who?

In tabular form, write the complete imperfect of portō; laudō.

¹ Also I used to carry, I carried, and similarly for all other forms.

38

ASKING QUESTIONS IN LATIN

- 1 Puella ambulat, the girl walks.
 2 Ambulatne puella? Does the girl walk?

-ne attached to an emphatic word in the sentence, is called an enclitic. It has no separate translation, but is used to ask questions. In questions, an important word, often the verb, with the enclitic attached, usually comes first. When cūr, quis, or any other question word is used, -ne is omitted.

| 1 Quis vocātur? | 1 Who praises the sailors? |
| 2 Laudantur ne nautae? | 2 Where do sailors fight? |
| 3 Vocābārisne agricola? | 3 Were the girls walking? |
| 4 Amābātur ne patria? | 4 Was Julia praised? |
| 5 Vocābantur ne puellae? | 5 Were they awaiting the queen? |
| 6 Quis exspectābātur? | 6 Where was the queen awaited? |

RĒGĪNA, queen

LESSON VII

FUTURE ACTIVE AND PASSIVE INDICATIVE OF Portō — ABLATIVE OF PERSONAL AGENT

41 Verb, portō, I carry Present stem, portā-

FUTURE INDICATIVE

ACTIVE

portābō, I shall carry portābis, you will carry portābit, he, she, it will carry portābimus, we shall carry portābitis, you will carry portābunt, they will carry

PASSIVE

portābor, I shall be carried portāberis, you will be carried portābitur, he, she, it will be carried portābimur, we shall be carried portābiminī, you will be carried portābuntur, they will be carried

Each of these forms consists of three elements:

- 1 portā-, the present stem;
- 2 bi-, the sign of the indicative future (but note exceptions);
- 3 the personal ending.

Observe that the first person singular ends in -bō in the active and -bor in the passive, the second singular passive ends in -beris, the third plural active and passive end respectively in -bunt and -buntur.

The foregoing conjugation may be presented in tabular form on the blackboard in a manner similar to that indicated in 36 for use in connection with the indicative imperfect forms.

VOCABULARY

Anna, Anna, a woman's name cōservō (cōservā-), I save (fully) diū, adv., a long time nova, new
Numa, Numa, a man's name

Rōmāna, adj., Roman salūtō (salūtā-), I greet servō (servā-), I save, protect spectō (spectā-), I look at

43 ABLATIVE OF PERSONAL AGENT

- 1 Patria ab Annā amātur, her native land is loved by Anna.
 2 Viae ab agricolis laudābuntur, the roads will be praised by the farmers.

Note. (1) The agent is regularly a person.
 (2) This ablative is always preceded by the preposition ab or a.
 (3) It is used only with a passive verb.
 (4) The ending of the ablative singular is -ā, plural -is.

44 Rule. The personal agent with a passive verb is expressed by the ablative with ab or ā. Ab must be used before words beginning with a vowel or h.

45 EXERCISES

LESSON IX

THE GENITIVE CASE — APPPOSITION

54

THE GENITIVE CASE

1 Villa dominae est nōta, the country house of the lady is well-known, or, the lady's country house is well-known.

2 Anna filiās rēginārum salūtat, Anna greets the daughters of the queens, or, Anna greets the queens' daughters.

The ending of the genitive singular is -ae, the same as of the nominative plural; the ending of the genitive plural is -ārum.

Remarks: The genitive case in Latin corresponds in use to:

- (1) the adjective phrase in English introduced by of;
- (2) the possessive case in English.

APPPOSITION

1 Laudāmus Galbam, nautam, we praise Galba, the sailor.

2 Filiam Numae, agricolae, laudant, they praise the daughter of Numa, the farmer.

Note. Nautam is in the accusative because Galbam, the noun it explains, is in the accusative. Likewise, agricolae is in the genitive because Numae, the noun it explains, is in the genitive.

56 Rule. An appositive agrees in case with the noun or pronoun that it explains.

61 VOCABULARY REVIEWS — SUGGESTIONS

The words in the review vocabularies that follow may be used:
(1) as a written time-limited test; (2) as an oral time-limited test.

For the written test each pupil will fold and cut lengthwise, through the middle, one sheet of standard-sized pad. The pupil will write his name at the top of one of these slips. Then he will write the consecutive numbers from 1 to 25 inclusive, down the left margin. Next he will turn over the slip and write the numbers 26 to 50 in a similar manner on the reverse side.

At a signal from the teacher he will open his book to the list of Latin words and write on his slip, number for number, the English equivalents. When "Time!" is called by the teacher, he must instantly cease writing. The proper time limit for writing fifty words is six minutes.

This exercise may also be used with profit as an oral test. With his eyes on the Latin words, a pupil should be able to give the English equivalents of fifty in a minute. If he pronounces each Latin word before giving the English, the rate should be forty a minute.

After his list of fifty English words has been corrected, the pupil may be required to write after each English word on his list the Latin equivalent. These Latin words he may check with the words of the original list in his textbook.

Reviews of this type may be used as a means of assuring the ready recall of the English word when its Latin equivalent is visualized. The pupil may be expected to write forty Latin words in six minutes, when the English is given. From forty to fifty Latin words a minute is a fair rate for oral tests based on the vocabulary of the following lesson.

LUSCINIAE, nightingales

LESSON XI

DATIVE OF THE INDIRECT OBJECT — USE OF THE

2 Nauta agricolīs fābulam nārrat, the sailor tells a story to the farmers, or, the sailor tells the farmers a story.

3 Pecūnia Octāviae dabitur, the money will be given to Octavia, or, the money will be given Octavia.

In sentence 1, pictūram is the thing given, the direct object of dat; Annae is the person to whom the picture is given. Annae is in the dative case, the indirect object of dat. The ending is -ae. (Compare with genitive singular.)

In sentence 2, fābulam is the thing told, the direct object of nārrat; agricolīs represents the persons to whom the sailor tells the story. Agricolīs is in the dative plural, the indirect object of nārrat. The ending is -īs. (Compare with ablative plural.)

In sentence 3, Octāviae is in the dative case (singular); Octāviae is the indirect object of the passive verb dabitur. The ending is -ae.

Rule. The indirect object of a verb is in the dative case.

In a Latin sentence the indirect object regularly is placed before the direct object. This order may be changed for reasons of emphasis.

Gen. silvārum , of forests , forests'	-ārum
Dat. silvis , to (for) forests (indirect object)	-is
Acc. silvās , forests (direct object)	-ās
Abl. silvis , from, by, (with prep., in) in forests	-is

1 Memorize the case endings.

2 The vocative case (case of direct address), the same as the nominative in this declension as in most other declensions, is not given here.

3 The base is obtained by dropping the ending -ae of the genitive singular.

4 What cases in the singular have the same endings? In the plural? What cases in the singular have the same endings as the nominative plural?

5 To decline silva, add the case endings to the base silv-.

Note. The gender of most nouns of this declension is feminine, but names of males are masculine. The following masculines have been used in the previous lessons: agricola, Galba, nauta, Numa. Incola is usually considered masculine.

¹ Sometimes the article "the" instead of "a" is required, sometimes no article, according to the use.

70 (a) Pronounce each Latin word.

Name the case in which each noun is found.

If the noun is in the singular, give the corresponding plural.

If the noun is in the plural, give the corresponding singular.

1 Agricola (what cases?); portis (what cases?); villā.

2 Patriam, villārum, viis.

3 Porta, nautās, rēgīnae (gen.).

4 Fortūnae (dat.), terrae (plur.).

(b) Write the Latin for:

1 The picture (as subject), the water (as direct object), of the villa, the villa's, villa (as indirect object).

2 In the water, on (in) the islands, for the farmers.

3 Of the sailors, the sailors (as subject), the daughters (as direct object).

4 Write ten original Latin sentences. Use the nominative singular of agricola in 1, the ablative singular of portis in 2, the genitive singular of patriam in 3, the ablative plural of villārum in 4, the nominative plural of viis in 5, the accusative plural of villa in 6, the dative singular of nautās in 7, the dative plural of rēgīnae in 8, the accusative singular of fortūna in 9, the genitive plural of terrae in 10.

71 Using silva as a model, write the complete declension of: insula, patria, rēgīna bona.

72 Give the Latin word from which each of the following is derived: fable, fortunate, misery, narrative, occupy, picture, victory.

74 USES OF THE BLACKBOARD

The blackboard is a valuable aid in the Latin classroom. By its use all members of the class enjoy an equal opportunity to visualize Latin words and sentences written in script, and to share in noting and in correcting errors.

It is suggested that pupils follow the practice of putting their names at the top of the board. Each pupil should write his exercise on the board strictly within assigned space limits.

Vertical lines drawn between the spaces assigned to individual pupils will be found of value to this end. Exercises should be carefully aligned and neatly and legibly written.

1 The present, imperfect, and future tenses of portō in the indicative, active, and passive, have been given in previous lessons. The conjugation of these tenses is presented in this lesson for purposes of review, comparison, and drill.

2 It is expected that the exercises in this lesson shall be both oral and written. The pupil should give orally, the English equivalents from the teacher's pronunciation of the Latin forms, and in a similar manner the Latin equivalents for the English. Written home work may be assigned, and full use made of the blackboard.

3 Written and oral synopses of some of the verbs given in the preceding lessons will afford an excellent preparation for the exercises.

Nouns ending in -ius have a genitive singular in -ī: sociī. In the other cases the endings are added to the base, soci-, without change.

THE VOCATIVE CASE

The vocative case is used in direct address: "Marcus, where are you going?" In Latin, "Marcus" would be expressed in the vocative case. In the plural, the vocative is always the same as the nominative. In the singular, also, the Latin nominative and vocative are alike except in nouns of the second declension that end in -us. These nouns (and adjectives) have a vocative ending in -e: Serve! Mārce! Serve bone!

The vocative singular of filius, son, and of proper nouns that end in -ius, Iūlius, ends in -ī (not -ie): fili! Iūli!

The vocative rarely stands first in a Latin sentence. Regularly it is placed second: Cūr, fili, properās?

equus, -ī, m., horse

servus, -ī, m., slave, servant

socius, -ī, m., ally, comrade . ' .

85 In English, names of males are masculine and names of females are feminine. Names of objects without sex are neuter. In Latin, also, names of males are masculine and names of females are feminine. The gender of objects without sex is determined in various ways. At present, we need only to remember that nouns of the first declension are feminine, unless they are the names of males (agricola, nauta, incola, Galba, etc.); nouns of the second declension in -us are masculine.

This jingle was a favorite with the boys and girls of a generation ago who were learning the gender of nouns:

- 1 Nations, males, rivers, winds,
Mounts, and months are masculines.
- 2 Females, isles, lands, towns, and trees —
Among the feminines are these.
- 3 Whatever cannot be declined
This is of the neuter kind.
- 4 Common is whatever can Include a woman and a man.

LESSON XVII

AGREEMENT OF ADJECTIVES

92 An adjective has three genders: masculine, feminine, and neuter. An adjective of the bonus type, in agreement (1) with a masculine noun, is declined like servus; (2) with a feminine noun, like silva; (3) with a neuter noun, like bellum.

An adjective always has the same gender, number, and case as its noun, but does not always have the same endings. Agricola is declined like a feminine noun, but is really masculine because it denotes a man. Agricola bonus (not bona) is correct.

93 Rule. An adjective agrees with its noun in gender, number, and case.

94 Adjective, bonus, good

FIVE IMPORTANT PREPOSITIONS

99 Study the illustrative sentences until you are sure that you understand the meanings and the uses of the prepositions.

1 Brūtus ā villā properat, Brutus hastens away from his country house (perhaps he is on his way to town).

2 Brūtus dē villā properat, Brutus hastens (down) from his country house (maybe his house is on a hill).

3 Brūtus ex villā properat, Brutus hastens out of his country house (he was inside).

4 Brūtus ad villam properat, Brutus hastens toward (to) his country house (he is on his way home).

5 Brūtus in villam properat, Brutus hastens into his country house (he actually enters).

6 Brūtus in villā habitat, Brutus lives in the country house.

Note 1. You have used the preposition ab (ā) with a passive verb many times to denote a personal agent (44). Ab may be translated by only when it denotes a personal agent with a passive verb.

Note 2. The Latin preposition in is used with (1) a noun (or pronoun) in the ablative: in oppidō labōrat, he works in the town; in oppidō ambulat, he walks in the town; (2) a noun (or pronoun) in the accusative: in oppidum properat, he hastens into (sometimes against) the town. Whenever, in your reading, you see the Latin preposition in, examine the word which it governs. If the word is in the ablative, translate the preposition by in or on according to the sense; if the noun is in the accusative, translate into (or against).

LESSON XX

ENGLISH FROM LATIN — THE FAMILY TREE

107 To the pupils:

You have noticed in some of the preceding lessons how certain familiar English words come directly from the Latin. As you progress in your studies, you will gradually acquire the habit of relating many English words to their Latin originals. In the lessons that follow, it is planned to present groups of words that will assist you in acquiring such a habit. In this way, your stock of English words will grow surprisingly fast and their meanings will be more fully understood because of your increasing knowledge of their Latin ancestry. Many of you will gradually acquire much skill in seeing through the Latin the real meaning of a variety and range of English words that were before unfamiliar.

Recent investigations indicate that about fifty-two per cent of the English words used by authors and writers in various fields are of Latin origin. Many of these words come directly from the Latin, some of them from the Latin through the French. It is quite apparent, therefore, that the study of English through Latin is of immense practical value. In fact, there is no other study in the high school curriculum that should yield such immediate, definite, and abundant returns in useful, everyday values as the study of Latin.

In your work in derivation, you should make use of a notebook. For this purpose, a book of the loose-leaf type, similar to the one that is used for recording experiments in physics, will be found the most convenient. It is strongly advised that such a book be opened by each of you early in the first year of study and that the same book be used systematically on to the end of the second year. Many of you will do so well in this work that you will desire to keep your notebooks as permanent possessions.

108 The device that follows, probably first used by Miss Frances Sabin, Director of the Service Bureau for Classical Teachers, Teachers College, Columbia University, will be found attractive to the pupils for use in their notebooks.

THE FAMILY TREE

109 Make a sketch similar to the foregoing, showing on the trunk of the tree the verb locō, and on the branches not less than twelve English words derived from this verb.

LESSON XXI

SECOND CONJUGATION, INDICATIVE PRESENT AND IMPERFECT — ABLATIVE OF MEANS OR INSTRUMENT

- 110 Verb, moneō, I advise, warn
 Present Active Infinitive, monēre, to advise Present Stem, monē-

PRESENT

ACTIVE

I advise, do advise, etc.

moneō	monēmus
monēs	monētis
monet	monent

PASSIVE

I am advised, am being advised, etc.

moneor	monēmur
monēris	monēmini

conveniō, convenire, come to-	find
gether, meet	mūniō, mūnire, fortify
impediō, impedire, hinder	veniō, venire, come

134 1 Review present, imperfect, and future of amō, moneō, sum (132).

2 Compare the present stems: amā- (ā, or first conjugation), monē- (ē, or second conjugation), audī- (ī, or fourth conjugation).

3 What is the present stem of impediō, mūniō, veniō?

4 In the conjugation of audiō, observe (1) that u is required before -nt in audiunt (the same is true of erunt), (2) that ē must always precede the imperfect tense sign ba (audiēbat), (3) that the future is quite different from amābō, monēbit, monēbunt, but easier. What vowel is the sign of the future in audiam; in audient?

5 The sign of the future tense of the fourth conjugation is a in the first person singular, active and passive, elsewhere e.

6 Write the future of impediō, mūniō, veniō.

7 Write the complete conjugation of impediō, mūniō, and veniō in the active voice, three tenses as already given. (Give the future tense especial attention.)

135 Write in the active:

- (1) the present, third singular of ambulō, impediō, teneō, sum;
- (2) the present, third plural of appellō, iubeō, audiō, sum;
- (3) the imperfect second singular of dēbeō, laudō, mūniō, sum;
- (4) the future, first singular of nārrō, veniō, moveō, sum;
- (5) the future, third plural of nūntiō, habeō, audiō, sum.

136 Derivation: Give, with meaning, two or more English words derived from each of the following: ambulō, impediō, appellō, audiō, dēbeō, laudō, nārrō, moveō, nūntiō.

Ipse dominus, the man himself, the very man.

Ipsa regina, the queen herself, the very queen.

Ipsum periculum, the danger itself, the very danger.

Decline ipse dominus, ipsa regina, ipsum periculum.

ABLATIVE OF ACCOMPANIMENT

Dominus cum servo laborat, the master is working with (his) slave (friendly association).

Puer cum inimico pugnat, the boy fights with an enemy (unfriendly association).

150 Rule. The ablative is used with the preposition cum to denote accompaniment.

Do not confuse the ablative of accompaniment with the ablative of means. In English we may use the preposition with to express both means and accompaniment. Remember that "He fights with weapons" in Latin is armis pugnat. Test accompaniment by asking: "In company with whom?"

- 11 Glōria Italiae ipsius pueris (dat.) erit memoria grāta.

- 1 The place itself is not large.
- 2 We shall see the places themselves.
- 3 The example of the master himself was good.
- 4 They were seen by the son himself.
- 5 Men were fighting with their enemies in the very streets.
- 6 The very towns were in great danger of war.
- 7 Who will give aid to the queen, Octavia, herself?
- 8 The boys are working in the fields with the very slave.
- 9 We shall order the slave to come into camp with the boys.
- 10 Neither the girls nor the boys themselves fear that danger.

154 AURAL: Translate the Latin sentences above at the teacher's dictation. After translating each sentence, give the corresponding Latin orally.

LUPĪ, wolves

LESSON XXIX

THE PERFECT INDICATIVE ACTIVE, FIRST CONJUGATION

155 1 In Latin, regular verbs have four principal parts. You have been using two: portō, portāre; moneō, monēre; audiō, audire. What is the present stem of each? How obtained? What tenses are conjugated on the present stem?

2 The principal parts of portō, a regular first conjugation verb, are: portō, I carry; portāre, to carry; portāvī, I carried, have carried; portātus (having been) carried.

156 Perfect Indicative Active of portō Perfect stem, portāv- portāvī, I carried, have carried portāvimus, we carried, have carried portāvistī, you carried, have carried portāvistis, you carried, have carried portāvit, he carried, has carried portāvērunt, they carried, have carried

1 Special Endings of the Perfect

-ī, I	-imus, we
-istī, you (sing.)	-istis, you (plur.)
-it, he (she, it)	-ērunt, they

2 Give orally the principal parts of properō, labōrō, nūntiō. Write the perfect active of each verb.

A ROMAN TEMPLE

158 1 The imperfect (sometimes called the past descriptive) tense represents an action in past time as (1) actually going on, (2) customary or repeated: Nauta illam fābulam nārrābat, the sailor was telling (kept telling, used to tell) that story.

Do not use the imperfect unless you wish to indicate that the act you are describing was actually taking place, used (often) to take place or was being repeated, all in past time.

2 The perfect tense is used mainly in narration, not in description. The perfect merely indicates that the act, or event, took place. Servus ad dominum properāvit, the slave hurried toward his master. No word picture is painted of a hurrying slave.

The perfect sometimes represents an action as just completed, from the standpoint of the writer or speaker: Puerum (modo) vocāvit, he has (just now) called the boy.

LESSON XXX

PLUPERFECT (PAST PERFECT) AND FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE ACTIVE, FIRST CONJUGATION

161

PLUPERFECT

(1) portāveram, I had carried	portāverāmus, we had carried
portāverās, you had carried	portāverātis, you had carried
portāverat, he had carried	portāverant, they had carried

(2) The formation of this tense is perfectly regular. The pluperfect is one of the easiest in Latin: portāv- (perfect stem) + -era- (tense sign) + -m (personal ending). Until, by practice, you can take in the whole word at a glance, translate beginning with the ending: -nt, they; -era-, had; portāv-, carried.

FUTURE PERFECT

SINGULAR

PLURAL

(1) portāverō, I shall have carried	portāverimus, we shall have carried
portāveris, you will have carried	portāveritis, you will have carried
portāverit, he will have carried	portāverint, they will have carried

(2) The formation is: portāv- (have carried); -eri- (will); -nt (they). Remember that the first person singular is portāverō (compare amābō; erō). Write the perfect, pluperfect, and future perfect of appellō, dō, existimō.

163 Below are given some of the English words that are derived from portō. If in doubt, consult an English dictionary for the meanings of each word. Use the words correctly, each in an English sentence: deport, comport, export, import, report, support; department, portage, porter; portable.

DATIVE OF POSSESSOR

Study these two ways of expressing in Latin the same thought:

- 1 Vir equum habet, the man has a horse.
- 2 Virō est equus (to the man is a horse), the man has a horse.
- 3 Puella pecūniam habēbat, the girl had money.
- 4 Puellae erat pecūnia (to the girl was money), the girl had money.

In 2 and 4, the datives, virō and puellae, represent the owners, or possessors, and therefore are called Datives of Possessor. Some form of sum is required with the dative of possessor.

169 Rule. In Latin, possession or ownership may be expressed by the dative with some form of sum.

In the nominative case, the personal pronouns are used only for emphasis and contrast.

1 Ego labōrō, tū nōn labōrās, I work, you do not work.

2 Tū, fili, fuistī in periculō, You, son, have been in danger.

In 1, note the contrast; 2 illustrates a common use of the personal pronoun before a noun in the vocative.

183 Cum, when used with the ablative of a personal pronoun, is always attached: tēcum (not cum tē), vōbiscum.

AGNUS, lamb

Nōn est vivere sed valēre vīta (Martial) — Life is accomplishment, not mere existence.

LESSON XL

THE REFLEXIVE PRONOUN, THIRD PERSON — POSSESSIVE ADJECTIVES (SOMETIMES PRONOUNS)

207

REFLEXIVE PRONOUN

SINGULAR AND PLURAL

Nom. (lacking)

Gen. sui, of himself, herself, itself, themselves

Dat. sibi, to (for) himself, herself, itself, themselves

Acc. sē, or sēsē, himself, herself, itself, themselves (direct obj.)

Abl. sē, or sēsē (with, etc.) himself, herself, itself, themselves

Review ipse (148).

- 1 Vir sē laudat, the man praises himself (reflexive).
- 2 Vir ipse puerum laudat, the man himself (intensive) praises the boy.
- 3 Puella sē laudat, the girl praises herself.
- 4 Virī sē laudant, the men praise themselves.
- 5 Bellum sē nōn incitat, war does not incite itself.

Sē refers (reflects) back to the subject of its sentence. Translate by "himself," "herself," "themselves," as the subject requires.

With the ablative of the reflexive pronoun, as with the personal pronouns, cum is an enclitic: sēcum (not cum sē).

VOCABULARY

aut . . . aut, either . . . or hōra, -ae, f., hour

initium, -ī, n., beginning inopia, -ae, f., lack meus, -a, -um, my, mine noster, nostra, nostrum, our, ours

nūntius, -ī, m., messenger, message

paucī, -ae, -a, few sui, reflex. pro., of himself, herself, itself, themselves suus, -a, -um, his (own), her (own), their (own)

tuus, -a, -um, your, yours vester, vestra, vestrum, your, yours (refers to more than one) vigilia, -ae, f., watch (of the night)

209 POSSESSIVE ADJECTIVES AND PRONOUNS

Meus, tuus, suus are declined like bonus (94).

Noster and vester are declined like pulcher (129).

The vocative of meus is mī (mī fili; mī amīce).

When these words modify nouns directly, they are possessive adjectives: Hic est equus meus (adj.), this is my horse.

When they modify nouns indirectly, they are possessive pronouns: Hic equus est meus (pronoun), this horse is mine.

Be sure to make these adjectives and pronouns agree in gender, number, and case with their nouns, not with the words to which they refer.

1 Hortus tuus, Octāvia, est magnus.

Your garden is large, Octavia.

2 Hortus, Octāvia, est tuus.

The garden is yours, Octavia.

Tuus, in both instances, refers to Octavia, but agrees in gender, number, and case with hortus.

210EXERCISES

- 1 Filius tuus aut cum amīcō meō aut cum suō veniet.
- 2 Filiae meae aut cum servīs suīs aut cum meīs venient.
- 3 Prīmā vigiliā, nūntius ipse victōriam nostram confirmāvit.
- 4 Initiō proelī nūntiū ad castra sua properāverant.
- 5 Paucīs hōrīs filia mea aut equum meum aut suum habēbit.

211

- 1 Few men praise either themselves or their own kindness.
- 2 These women praise their own sons but not themselves.
- 3 This man praises his own daughter but not mine.
- 4 I shall move my camp on account of the lack of food.
- 5 The messengers gave food to a friend but not to themselves.
- 6 This messenger did not have his own horse with him (self).

¹ In the aural exercises, it is expected that the teacher will read the Latin and the English aloud, and that the pupil, with book closed, shall translate separate words, phrases, clauses, and, finally, entire sentences.

Mentem mortalia tangunt (Virgil) — Mortal woes touch the heart.

LESSON XLIII

THE IRREGULAR VERB Possum — THE ACCUSATIVE OF DURATION OF TIME

224 Review the indicative of sum (650).

225 1 Principal parts: possum, I am able, I can; posse, to be able; potui, I have been able, was able, could.

2 Possum is a much used verb. Learn the indicative thoroughly (651), and the English for every form, especially of the imperfect and perfect.

3 Formation: pot- (base of the indeclinable adjective potis, able) + sum (I am) = possum (potsum), I am able, I can. Throughout the verb, the t of pot- is changed to s before a form of sum that begins with s.

4 Possum, I can, am able; poteram, I could, was able; potui, I could, have been able. An infinitive regularly completes the meaning of possum: Potes labōrāre, you can work.

226 ACCUSATIVE OF DURATION OF TIME

1 In eō oppidō annum habitābam, I lived in that town a year.

2 Puer ūnam hōram mēcum mānsit, the boy remained with me one hour.

GEMINI (THE TWINS)

Castor et Pollux filii Iovis (of Jupiter) erant. Illi in Graeciā diū habitābant et miserōs (virōs) ē periculīs multīs liberābant. Postrēmō pater (their father) magnōs filiōs ā terrā in caelum vocāvit. Illis locum clārum inter caelī stellās dedit pater. Rōmānī illās stellās lūcidās appellāverunt "Geminōs."

	vīcus, -ī, m., village

PAST PARTICIPLES

The past participle is an adjective. It is declined like bonus, and like all other adjectives must agree with its subject (the word it modifies) in gender, number, and case.

- 1 Puer monitus est, the boy was warned.
- 2 Puella monita est, the girl was warned.
- 3 Oppidum monitum est, the town was warned.
- 4 Pueri moniti sunt, the boys were warned.
- 5 Puellae monitae sunt, the girls were warned.
- 6 Oppida monita sunt, the towns were warned.

241

- 8 A quō portātum est signum in vīcum?
- 9 Possuntne lēgātī eōs vicōs occupāre?
- 10 A quibus occupāta sunt ea oppida?

242

- 1 We have been aroused by the danger of war.
- 2 You have been surpassed by few men.
- 3 I have been kept away from the villages.
- 4 The poor men can not support the standards.
- 5 By what men were our standards carried?
- 6 We were alarmed by that signal of war.
- 7 Have they been able to keep their friends from danger?
- 8 You ought to carry the standard into our camp.
- 9 The baggage was moved in the third watch.
- 10 What hindrance can keep us away from our friends?

LESSON XLVII

PLUPERFECT AND FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE PASSIVE

243 1 Review the principal parts and the English equivalents of all verbs in 195, with particular attention to the past participles.

2 Review the perfect passive (238). How is it formed? With what must the past participle always agree?

3 Review the imperfect and future of sum (73), also the perfect and pluperfect active of the first, second, and fourth conjugations (644, 645, 648).

244 1 The pluperfect passive is formed by combining the imperfect of sum with the past participle; the future perfect by combining the future of sum with the past participle.

PLUPERFECT PASSIVE

2 I had been ordered, etc. We had been ordered, etc.

iussus eram

iussī erāmus

iussus erās

iussī erātis

iussus erat

iussī erant

3 Conjugate the pluperfect active and passive of parō, dō, videō, audiō, inveniō.

FUTURE PERFECT PASSIVE

4 I shall have been ordered, etc. We shall have been ordered, etc.

iussus erō

iussī erimus

iussus eris

iussī eritis

iussus erit

iussī erunt

5 Conjugate the future perfect active and passive of vocō, nūntiō, moveō, videō, impediō.

6 Remember that the third plural active is iusserint, and the passive is iussī erunt.

EXERCISES

- 1 Ad vīcum cum sociīs venīre iussī erāmus.
- 2 Mūrī altī oppidōrum ab oppidānīs aedificātī erant.
- 3 Initiō proelī impedīmenta in castra portāta erant.
- 4 Septem hōrās in oppidō vōbīscum mānserint.
- 5 Paucīs in hōrīs nūntiī ā lēgātīs vīsī erunt.
- 6 Primā vigiliā in oppidum convēnerant cōpiae nostrae.
- 7 Multa tēla post bellum in agrīs inventa erant.
- 8 Ea (tēla) ā vicīnīs diū cōservābuntur.
- 9 A quibus nūntiīs datum erit oppidānīs signum?
- 10 Quibuscum illius proelī monumenta vīderātis?
- 11 Cui lēgātō datum erat illud praeium?
- 12 Spatium quattuor hōrārum nūntiī mānserant.
- 13 Una imperī hōra illīs ā lēgātō nōn data est.

246

- 1 (There) had been an abundance of grain in the villages.
 - 2 By whom had the grain been moved into the villages?
 - 3 The neighbors had given aid to these messengers.
 - 4 Aid had not been given to the faithful farmers.
 - 5 Why, faithful slave, could you not save yourself?
 - 6 In a few hours the signal will have been given.
 - 7 In the space of one hour the signals will have been given.
 - 8 The services of the lieutenants will have been praised.
 - 9 That great monument had been moved from the Appian Way.
 - 10 Can men move great monuments long distances?¹
 - 11 We had been warned of (about) the danger by a few men.
 - 12 You had been ordered by the lieutenant to come to me.
- ¹ Extent of space, like duration of time, is expressed by the accusative (227).

PHĀSIĀNA, pheasant

LESSON XLVIII

THE RELATIVE PRONOUN

247 The relative pronoun has precisely the same forms as the interrogative adjective quī. The plurals have the same translations as the corresponding forms of the singular. Review the plural of quis (219).

	vīta , -ae, f., life

249 AGREEMENT OF THE RELATIVE PRONOUN

- Nūntius quem vidēs mēcum nōn diū manēbit.
The messenger whom you see will not stay with me long.
- Puellae quārum officia laudās sunt fidae.
The girls whose services you are praising are faithful.
- Virī quibus auxilium dedistī sunt lēgātī.
The men to whom you rendered (gave) help are lieutenant's.

In each of the foregoing sentences, name the antecedent of the relative pronoun, and give the reason for the (1) gender, (2) number, (3) case of each relative pronoun.

250 Rule. A relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender and number, but the case of the relative is determined by its use in its own clause.

EXERCISES

- 1 Quis est nūntius quem admonuit lēgātus?
- 2 Graecia est terra quam Rōmānī pācāvērunt.
- 3 Quis arma quae illī habēbant comparāverat?
- 4 Iīs quī nōn labōrant pecūniam nōn dabimus.
- 5 Ea, cui auxilium dedistī, erat filia mea.
- 6 Sunt nostrī sociī quōrum vītāe fuērunt in periculō.

LESSON XLIX

ABLATIVE OF CAUSE — REVIEW OF THE ABLATIVE

253 ABLATIVE OF CAUSE

1 Inopiā cibī labōrant, they are suffering from (on account of, because of) a lack of food.

254 Rule. Cause may be expressed by the ablative without a preposition.

Note. Cause may also be expressed by (1) propter with the accusative: Propter inopiam cibī labōrant, they are suffering on account of the lack of food; (2) dē with the ablative: Dē inopiā cibī labōrant, they are suffering from (because of, due to) a lack of food. Sometimes the ablative of cause is best translated by the English preposition by.

255 2 Review the ablative of

- (1) place where or in which (33, note)
- (2) personal agent (44)
- (3) means or instrument (115)
- (4) accompaniment (150)
- (5) time within which (203)
- (6) cause (253, 254)

(a) Study the illustrative sentences and review the rule for each of the six uses of the ablative given above.

(b) In what three uses is a preposition required? Write two short Latin sentences to illustrate each of the three uses.

(c) In what uses are prepositions not required? Write sentences illustrative of these uses, as directed above.

256 VOCABULARY

257 In the following sentences, express cause both by the ablative and by propter with the accusative:

- 1 Because of the frequent dangers of war he had got together the weapons.
- 2 The lieutenant had been alarmed by the great lack of food.
- 3 They kept the horses with them because of the lack of grain.
- 4 Those boys had been alarmed by the flight of the men.
- 5 They can withstand the dangers of battle because of the abundance of weapons.
- 6 The men were asking aid on account of frequent injuries.
- 7 We cannot give aid on account of the flight of the slaves.
- 8 Within a few hours they will have been saved by their friends.

ARPINO (ANCIENT ARPINUM)

Cicero, greatest master of Latin prose, and Rome's most distinguished orator, was born near Arpinum in 106 B.C. Like many other ancient towns, Arpinum was built on a hilltop to facilitate defense in time of war.

261 PATRIOTIC DEFENSE OF THE HOME CITY

Castra quae nunc vidēre potestis nōn longē absunt ab oppidō vestrō. Lēgātus auxiliō servōrum et equōrum tēla multa in castra sua mōvit. Unā hōrā ea tēla ē castrīs ad mūrōs vestrōs mōta erunt. 273 (Answer the following questions in Latin orally. Every answer should be a complete sentence.)

- 1 Quis nārrat hanc fābulam? Ubi habitābat puer?
- 2 Quot frātrēs habēbat puer? Quot sorōrēs?
- 3 Cuius filius erat hic puer? Ubi erat pater?
- 4 Quot legiōnēs sēcum habēbat pater? Timēbantne legiōnēs bellum?
- 5 Quī patrem puerī laudābant? Cūr laudābant cōsulēs ducem suum?
- 6 Amābātur ne dux ā legiōnibus? Amābatne dux legiōnēs?
- 7 Cūr properābat dux ad castra? Quibuscum properāvit pater puerī?
- 8 Timēbantne legiōnēs perīcula? Bellumne ā legiōnibus amābātur?

LESSON LIX

USE OF THE ENGLISH DICTIONARY

301 Every member of the class should own a good abridged English dictionary. It is indispensable that the dictionary selected should be one that shows the language-origin of English words that are derived from other languages. Such books are Webster's Secondary School Dictionary, Worcester's Comprehensive School Dictionary, and the Desk Standard Dictionary.

Pupils may use the English dictionary in adding to their store of derivatives:

- (1) by looking for words derived from the simple stems of the verb that is being studied; and
- (2) by looking in alphabetic sequence for words derived from the Latin by combination of a prefix with the verb stem or stems.

302 For the notebook:

By the addition of Type III, as presented on the following page, a suitable and complete form for a notebook exercise in derivation is obtained.

A SCROLL OF MANUSCRIPT

303 Complete the exercise in Type I, as required, and copy in notebook the entire exercise, including Types I, II, and III.

Verb, dūcō, I lead

dūcō, dūcere, dūxī, ductus

TYPE I (Without definitions). See § 166

duct, ductile, ductility

and 20 additional words derived from dūcō

304

TYPE II (With definitions)

English Word	Latin Root or Base	Latin Prefix	Definition
adduce	dūc-	ad	lead to (a conclusion), bring forward
conduce	dūc-	cum (con)	lead together, assist
deduce	dūc-	dē	lead down, conclude
educe	dūc-	ē	lead out, derive induce	dūc-	in	lead into, persuade produce	dūc-	prō	lead forth, exhibit reduce	dūc-	re	lead back, lower in rank conduct	duct-	cum (con)	lead together, escort
conductor	duct-	cum (con)	one who conducts, leads
production	duct-	prō	act of producing; that which is produced

305 By using mitt- and miss- of mitto, mitt(ere), misi, miss(us), send, make a table similar to Type II. Cum will be written com, the suffix -tion will be -sion. In this exercise, omit the prefix dē and the suffix -tor. Add the prefixes di(s) and per.

TYPE III (With examples of use)

English Word	Latin Stem or Base	Latin Prefix	Use in English Sentence
duct	duct-		This duct conveys the water
inductive	duct-	in	I teach by the inductive method inductively	duct-	in	Solve the problem inductively induction	duct-	in	He has an induction coil producer	dūc-	prō	The farmer is a producer

INFINITIVES AS IN ENGLISH

316

PRESENT INFINITIVE

	ACTIVE	PASSIVE
First conjugation,	vocāre , to call	vocārī , to be called
Second conjugation,	monēre , to advise	monērī , to be advised
Third conjugation,	dūcere , to lead	dūcī , to be led
Fourth conjugation,	audire , to hear	audirī , to be heard

The present infinitive of the verb sum is esse, to be.

VOCABULARY

âcritē , adv., sharply, fiercely, keenly	fortiter , adv., bravely dēfendō , dēfendere, dēfendī, dēfēnsus, defend	pūniō , pūnīre, pūnivī, pūnitus, punish

318

1 Filius mātrem dēfendere dēbet, dēfendere dēbuit.

2 A son ought to defend his mother, ought to have defended.

3 Māter ā filiō dēfendī dēbet, dēfendī dēbuit.

4 A mother ought to be defended by her son, ought to have been defended.

5 Cōsul mīlitēs (acc.) dominam dēfendere iussit.

6 The consul ordered the soldiers to defend the lady.

7 Cōsul dominam ā mīlitibus dēfendī iussit.

8 The consul ordered the lady to be defended by the soldiers.

319 Rule. An infinitive is required with dēbeō, iubeō, and certain other Latin verbs, just as with the corresponding English verbs.

320 Rule. A noun or pronoun used as the subject of an infinitive must be in the accusative case.

Note. Dēbeō is not defective like the English ought: Librum legere dēbēs, you ought to read the book; Librum legere dēbuiſtī, you ought to have read the book (it was your duty to read); Librum legere dēbēbis, it will be your duty to read the book.

LESSON LXIX

PREPOSITIONS — VERBS COMPOUNDED WITH PREPOSITIONS — LATIN PREFIXES USED IN ENGLISH

357 In Latin a compound verb is often formed by combining a simple verb with a prefix. The prefixes used in such compounds are usually prepositions.

It is important in your study of Latin to note the influence of prefixes in modifying or in changing the meaning of the simple verb. The same influence will be observed in derived English words of corresponding formation.

358 Memorize the following table and put it in your notebook:

ALPHABETIC LIST OF COMMON LATIN PREFIXES

ā, ab (abs)	from, away from
ad (af, ag, al, ap, ar, as, at)	to, toward, near
circum	around con (co, col, com, cum, cor)	with, together
dē	down from, away dis, dī	apart
ē, ex (ef)	out of, from

359 Most of the simple verbs, and many of the compounds given below ought to be familiar, because of their use in preceding lessons. From your knowledge of the meaning of each simple verb, and of the prefix, give the meaning of the compound. Verify your definition by referring to the vocabulary at the end of the book. You will notice that the final consonant of the prefix often is changed to agree with the initial consonant of the simple verb. Sometimes it is dropped altogether.

Most adjectives of the third declension have stems ending in -i. This is true of adjectives that have three different endings in the nominative singular (ācer, ācris, ācre) and of adjectives that have two endings (omnis, omne), except comparatives (383). The masculine and feminine genders of adjectives of two endings are declined like civis, except that they regularly have ī in the ablative singular. The neuter is declined exactly like mare. In what forms does the declension of the masculine of ācer differ from the declension of civis?

366 Decline celer. How does it differ in declension from ācer? Like omnis, decline fortis; brevis; facilis.

369 Dear Father:

I shall write you (ad tē) a short letter again tomorrow. In that letter I shall tell you about a brave boy who is in our school. The story will be short, because I cannot write long letters. You know that my lessons are long and my time in school is short. The teacher says that our lessons are short; but we pupils do not think that many lessons are short. I believe that all the lessons are easy for the keen teacher. I do not think that the language is easy, but I like the stories about the brave Romans. They were keen men, brave soldiers, and good citizens. In a short time I shall be at home (domi) with you.

With best wishes (Valē),

Marcus.

377 ENGLISH WORDS FROM LATIN VERBS

The frequent recurrence of English words of Latin origin has been emphasized in preceding exercises. Most noticeable in such exercises has been the fact that very many familiar words are derived from a limited number of Latin verbs, each of which has a large family of English descendants.

Such English derivatives may be formed from a Latin verb root or stem with: (1) a suffix, (2) a prefix, (3) both prefix and suffix.

At this stage the pupil is not expected accurately to distinguish between the verb root and the different stems. This exercise is given to show the possibilities of vocabulary development from a Latin verb.

378 Verb, scribō, write

Principal parts: scribō, scribere, scripsi, scriptus

Without Prefix:

scribe, scribble, scribbler, scriber, scrip, script, scripture, scriptural

With Prefix:

ad:	ascribe, ascribable, ascription
circum:	circumscribe, circumscript, circumscription con:	conscribe, conscript, conscription, conscriptive
dē:	describe, describer, description, descriptive
in:	inscribe, inscribable, inscription
prae:	prescribe, prescription, prescriptive
prō:	proscribe, proscription, proscriptive, proscriptively
post:	postscript
re:	rescript
sub:	subscribe, subscriber, subscript, subscription
super:	superscribe, superscript, superscription
trāns:	transcribe, transcribable, transcription

379 Write an exercise similar to the foregoing using the verb pōnō. Ad will be ap; con, com; in, im; sub, sup. Omit circum.

LESSON LXXIII

ONE HUNDRED WORD TEST, NO. 2

380 TIME LIMIT, 12 MINUTES—DEGREE OF ACCURACY, 90%

Following the words with the index finger of the left hand, write on a sheet of exercise paper placed on the desk at the right the meanings of the words below in proper sequence. Turning the sheet, write the synopses and the declensions called for.

1 ācer	17 interim
2 admoneō	18 longē
3 aestās	19 lūx
4 agō	20 nōnus
5 audāx	21 nūntius
6 caput	22 ōrdō
7 celer	23 pōnō
8 circum	24 pōns
9 cīvis	25 possum
10 comes	26 quaerō

12 fortiter	28 sīc
13 genus	29 signum
14 gerō	30 sub
15 hiems	31 tandem
16 inopia	32 tēlum

381

1 Write synopses as follows:

audiō in the active and passive indicative, 3d singular;

dūcō in the active and passive indicative, 3d plural.

2 Principal parts of the verb veniō.

3 Declension of tūtus pōns throughout.

4 Declension of cōnsul and iter throughout.

Multa petentibus dēsunt multa (Horace) — Much is lacking to those who much desire.

LESSON LXXIV

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES

382 1 Adjectives have three degrees of comparison: positive, comparative, and superlative.

2 The comparative of an adjective is formed in the nominative singular masculine and feminine by adding -ior to the base of the positive; the corresponding neuter by adding -ius. The superlative is formed by adding -issimus, -a, -um to the base of the positive.

altus , -a, -um, high, deep, tall	altior , altius, higher	altissimus , -a, -um, highest
fortis , forte brave	fortior , fortius, braver	fortissimus , -a, -um, bravest

383 DECLENSION OF A COMPARATIVE

altior, higher

SINGULAR		PLURAL
Masc. and Fem.	Neut.	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.
altior	altius	altiōrēs	altiōra
altiōris	altiōris	altiōrum	altiōrum
altiōrī	altiōrī	altiōribus	altiōribus
altiōrem	altius	altiōrēs	altiōra
altiōre	altiōre	altiōribus	altiōribus

384 When quam, than, is expressed, the second of the two words compared must be in the same case as the first. Quam may be omitted when the first of the two words compared is in the nominative or accusative. Otherwise quam must be expressed. When quam is omitted, the second of the two words compared must be in the ablative:

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 Viri nōn sunt fortiōrēs quam fēminae. | } Men are not braver than women. |
| 2 Viri nōn sunt fortiōrēs fēminis. | |
| 3 Puerum altiōrem quam patrem vidī. | } I saw a boy taller than his father. |
| 4 Puerum altiōrem patre vidī. | |
| 5 A puerō fortiōre quam hōc milite servātus est. | He was saved by a boy braver than this soldier. |

EXERCISES

1 Haec puella est pede altior¹ quam soror. 2 Eī puerī nōn sunt pede altiōrēs sorōribus. 3 Ille mōns quem vidēs est altissimus Italiae montium. 4 Quī rēx audācior esse potest quam noster princeps? 5 Rēx nōn semper erat vir civitātis potentissimus. 6 Illī cīvēs dixerunt sē quam rēgem esse potentiōrēs. 7 Gladii hostium pede sunt longiōrēs quam gladii nostrī. 8 Maria multis pedibus sunt altiōra quam flūmina altissima. 9 Fortissimī atque audācissimī omnium Gallōrum erant Belgae. 10 Multō breviōre viā domum ex Galliā veniēmus. 11 Quis nōn scit maria multis pedibus altiōra esse flūminibus? 12 Proelium ā rēge potentissimō audācissimōque pugnābitur.

386 Answer these questions in complete Latin sentences:

1 Suntne hae puellae fortiōrēs quam frātrēs tuī? 2 Vidistīne altissimōs Italiae montis? 3 Estne pater tuus quam tū pede altior? 4 Eritne soror tua multō fortior quam frāter? 5 Putāsne puellam audāciōrem hōc puerō esse? 6 Quis potentior esse potest quam ille rēx? 7 Num erant milites Rōmānī audāciōrēs quam nostrī? 8 Nōne est hoc mare multō altius quam flūmen altissimum? 9 Num dicis hoc flūmen altius marī esse? 10 Num es tū audācissimus omnium virōrum?

¹ pede altior, a foot taller (taller by a foot). The amount, or degree, of difference between objects is expressed by the ablative without a preposition: multō breviōr est via (by) much shorter is the road.

Lēx plūs laudātur, quandō ratiōne probātur — Law is more praiseworthy when approved by reason.

LESSON LXXV

COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES (Continued) — DATIVE WITH ADJECTIVES

387

The four adjectives that follow, and a few others, are regular in the comparative, but their superlatives are formed by adding -limus to the base of the positive.

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
facilis, -e, easy	facilior, ¹ -ius	facillimus, ¹ -a, -um difficilis, -e, hard	difficilior, -ius	difficillimus, -a, -um similis, -e, like	similior, -ius	simillimus, -a, -um dissimilis, -e, unlike	dissimilior, -ius	dissimillimus, -a, -um

VOCABULARY

difficilis, -e, difficult	poena, -ae, f., punishment idōneus, -a, -um, suitable	postulō (ī), demand
iūdex, iūdicis, m., judge	quam, conjunc., than
lēx, lēgis, f., law	similis, -e, like
militāris, -e, military	dissimilis, -e, unlike

DATIVE WITH ADJECTIVES

Certain adjectives take the dative to indicate the direction or object of the quality denoted by these adjectives:

Hic puer est similis patrī, this boy is like (to) his father.

Ille locus est idōneus castrīs, that place is suitable for a camp.

390 Rule. The dative is used with adjectives that denote likeness, usefulness, fitness, friendliness, and their opposites, also nearness. Similis governs genitive when it means "the likeness."

EXERCISES

1 Iter equitibus fuit difficillimum, peditibus facile. 2 Quae itinera difficilliora esse possunt quam ea per montis? 3. Trans hoc flumen iter facilius erat equitibus quam peditibus. 4 Quod difficilius exemplum virtutis quam illud dari potest? 5 Arma militum Romanorum dissimillima erant armis hostium. 6 Nostrae leges vestris legibus sunt simillimae. 7 Lex militaris poenam malo facto idoneam postulavit. 8 Lex militaris civibus urbis amicae non est idonea. 9 Iudices putant leges militaris populo libero non esse idoneas. 10 Multae leges Romanae legibus nostris sunt dissimillimae. 11 Legati locum castris peditum equitumque idoneum delegerant.

392 1 Military leaders always select places suitable for their camps. 2 This village is very like the neighboring villages. 3 The inhabitants of a village are not unlike the citizens of a great city. 4 Martial (military) laws are suitable for soldiers but not for good citizens. 5 The laws of our country are not always like the laws of Italy. 6 This route into Gaul is very easy, that very difficult. 7 Why did the commander choose the much more difficult route? 8 A good commander will lead his soldiers by the easier route. 9 The judge demanded a place suitable for the trial. 10 The punishment of bad citizens is very difficult for a judge.

393 Give two or more English words suggested by each of the following: audax, iungo, pār, potēns, difficilis, iudex, lēx, militāris, similis, dissimilis.

You have had at least one Latin noun associated in origin with each of the following words: audax, militāris, potēns, iudex, iungo. Try to recall the noun. Verify your work by reference to the general vocabulary.

Nōn scholae, sed vitae discimus (Seneca) — We learn not for school, but for life.

LESSON LXXVI

CARDINAL NUMERALS

394 The cardinal numerals from one to twenty are as follows:

ūnus, -a, -um	one	ūndecim	eleven
duo, duae, duo	two	duodecim	twelve
trēs, tria	three	trēdecim	thirteen
quattuor	four	quattuordecim	fourteen

nōvem	nine	ūndēvigintī	nineteen
decem	ten	vigintī	twenty

395 DECLENSION OF DUO AND TRĒS

The declension of ūnus has already been given (228, note).
Duo and trēs are declined as follows:

Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.
duo	duae	duo	trēs	tria

1 Cōpiaē equestrēs sunt celeriorēs cōpiīs pedestribus. 2 Hic equus miser nōn est multō celerior illō homine. 3 Castra equestria ab ācerimīs peditibus obsidēbuntur. 4 Aestāte noctēs brevissimae sunt, hieme longissimae. 5 Hae puellae omnium puellārum sunt pulcherrimae. 6 Cōpiaē equestrēs sunt celeriorēs sed nōn audāciōrēs quam pedestrēs. 7 Per aestātem ea urbs pulcherrima ā cōpiīs pedestribus obsessa erat. 8 Omnibus ex partibus cōpiaē pedestrēs eam oppugnāvērunt. 9 Acrī oppugnātiōne peditēs victōriam obtinuērunt. 10 Propter pulcherrimae urbis ruīnam miserrimī sunt oppidānī. 11 Sed ex finitimā urbe sociī auxilium ad miserrimōs mittent. 12 Brevi tempore mūrī urbis pulchriōris aedificābuntur.

405 1 Men are not often swifter than horses. 2 Winter in Italy is often more beautiful than summer. 3 But summer is a very beautiful part of the year. 4 Do you think that summer is more beautiful than winter? 5 Are infantry forces much braver than cavalry forces? 6 We think that infantry forces are braver than cavalry forces. 7 The camp (of the) infantry was besieged during the winter. 8 The townsmen were more wretched than the Roman soldiers. 9 The townsmen were very unhappy on account of the downfall of their city. 10 The downfall of great cities is always very pitiable. 11 The memory of that long night in the ruins of the great city will always be very sad. 12 But the townsmen are brave; in a very short time they will build a new city.

LESSON LXXIX

FORMATION AND COMPARISON OF ADVERBS

406 1 Adverbs are usually derived from adjectives. Adverbs derived from adjectives of the first and second declensions regularly are formed by adding -ē to the base of the positive; those derived from adjectives of the third declension are formed by adding -iter (sometimes -ter) to the base; stems in -nt drop the t: diligen(t)-ter. Facile is an exception.

2 The comparative forms of adverbs are the same as the nominative singular neuter of the corresponding adjectives (fortius, facilius, etc.); the superlative forms regularly end in -ē (fortissimē, facillimē, etc.).

ANDROCLUS ET LEO I

Androclus, servus miserrimus, Caesarem in Circō Maximō salūtāvit; multitudinī quoque hominum, "Salvētē atque valētē" dixit. Nam leōnēs ab eō nōn longē absunt. Ex quibus magnus leō Africānus trāns Circī arēnās ad Androclum celeriter properat. Androclus mortem miserrimam in arēnīs nunc expectat. Propius atque propius ad hominem leō appropinquat. Circus Maximus subitō quiēscit. Multitūdō enim miseram hominis mortem mox vidēbit.

En! Prope Androclum breve tempus cōsistit leō. Nunc, mirābile dictū (wonderful to relate), manum caputque hominis linguā magnā modō amīcō lambit. Iniūriam tamen nōn facit.

Suspicit tandem Androclus mōnstrum. Nōn iam timet, quod suum leōnem statim cognōscit. Sic amīcitiā leōnis miserā ex morte servātus est Androclus.

LESSON LXXXIII

NINE IRREGULAR ADJECTIVES

426 The nine adjectives in the vocabulary of this lesson have -ius in the genitive and -ī in the dative singular of all genders — endings borrowed from pronouns. The plurals are regular (94).

SINGULAR			SINGULAR
Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
alius	alia	aliud	alter	altera	alterum
aliūs	aliūs	aliūs	altērius	altērius	altērius
aliī	aliī	aliī	alterī	alterī	alterī
alium	aliam	aliud	alterum	alteram	alterum
aliō	aliā	aliō	alterō	alterā	alterō

Alius has the ending -ud borrowed from pronouns (id, quod, illud). The genitive aliūs is rare. Altērius sometimes takes its place.

EXERCISES

1 Bīnae¹ cōpiae adsunt; alterae sunt pedestrēs, alterae equestrēs. 2 Aliī per portās properant, aliī iam adsunt in urbe. 3 Num ūllum auxilium sociī ad urbem mīsērunt? Nūllum missum est. 4 Aliī in hostis fortissimē prōcēdunt, aliī salūtem sibi petunt. 5 Duo milītēs in periculō erant; quōrum alter erat pedes, alter eques. 6 Neuter ūllum tēlum sēcum habēbat sed alter alterum dēfendit. 7 Poteruntne ūnius legiōnis milītēs tōtius urbis cīvīs vincere? 8 Aliī² cīvēs aliud clāmant; liberī sōlī nōn timent. 9 Aliī cīvī gladium, aliī pīlum dedit dux. 10 Fēminīs liberisque sōlis nūlla tēla ā duce data sunt.

429 The entire authority of the Roman consuls came from (dē) the will of the people. The people did not often give all power to one man. But in a time of great danger the power of the entire state was often given to one citizen.

In America there is no king. The people alone have the whole power. The citizens of America select one man to whom they give great authority. Britain has a king; America has a president.³ Which has the greater power?

² Translate: "Some citizens shout one thing, others another." The Latin is: "Other citizens shout another thing." Similarly: "Alius aliud dixit," "Another said another thing," should be rendered in English: "One said one thing, another another (thing)."

³ praeses, praesidis, m., president.

ORDINAL NUMERALS — IRREGULAR VERB, Eō

432 The first twenty ordinals are as follows:

primus	first	undecimus	eleventh
secundus	second	duodecimus	twelfth
tertius	third	tertius decimus	thirteenth
quartus	fourth	quartus decimus	fourteenth
quintus	fifth	quintus decimus	fifteenth sextus	sixth	sextus decimus	sixteenth

octavus	eighth	duodēvicēsimus	eighteenth
nōnus	ninth	undēvicēsimus	nineteenth
decimus	tenth	vicēsimus	twentieth

All numerals of this class are declined like bonus.

433 For complete mastery of these words, assuring their quick recall, various interesting devices may be used:

1 For several successive days following the study of this lesson, the class may be asked to number in the order of their seating. In such numbering, boys will use the masculine singular form of the numeral and girls the feminine form.

2 In assigning exercises for blackboard work, the teacher may say: "Count by twos," or "Count by threes." Then each pupil, on going to the board, will write his ordinal above the space for his exercise.

3 Numbered sentences in the book, both English and Latin, may be designated regularly by teacher and pupils by their appropriate Latin ordinals.

ULYSSES VISITS THE LOTUS EATERS II

440 For the notebook:

Copy carefully in your notebook paragraph 438. Underline in red the Latin words for which you are able to suggest related English words.

Below your Latin paragraph make a list of the underlined words and place after each the related English word or words that you have selected. Your list should show not less than fifteen Latin words with not less than one related English word for each and a total of at least thirty English words.

SCYLLA

Ulysses, in his wanderings, is said to have sailed past this rock which lies between Italy and Sicily. A fabled monster, girded with barking dogs, dwelt here.

REGULUS I

In primō bellō Carthāginiēnsī M.¹ Atilius Regulus, cōsul Rōmānus, in Africā magnō cum numerō militum victus est ā duce Xanthippō. Regulus quīque annōs captīvus erat Carthāgine. Rōmānī autem multitudinem captīvōrum nōbilium, quōs recipere magnopere cupiēbant Carthāginiēnsēs, in Italiā retinēbant.

Carthāginiēnsēs tandem, longō bellō dēfessī, Regulum lēgātum in Italiam mīsērunt ad senātum Rōmānum. Regulus ante profectiōnem sīc iūrāvit: "Aut Rōmānī vestrōs cīvēs domum mittent aut ego ipse Carthāginem redibō captīvus vester." Carthāginiēnsēs, quod dē fidē hostis audācis nōn dubitābant, Regulum Rōmam mīsērunt ad senātum.

Xanthippus, -ī, m., a Greek general

¹ Romans of the old, patrician families regularly had three names. The first (praenōmen) was the "given," individual name, the second (nōmen) was the name of the great group or clan, the gēns, to which the man belonged, the third (cognōmen) indicated the particular branch of the clan. The first name (praenōmen) was regularly abbreviated: M. for Mārcus; C. for Gaius; Q. for Quīntus; Ti. for Tiberius, etc. This abbreviation was a mark of free birth and high rank. Girls had only one name, the name of the gēns or clan. The daughter of C. Iūlius Caesar was Iūlia; of M. Tullius Cicerō, Tullia. A second daughter would have been called Iūlia Secunda, Tullia Secunda.

A ROMAN AQUEDUCT IN FRANCE

The Latin play, Horatius, that follows is from a little volume entitled "Decem Fabulae," published by the Clarendon Press, London, England. The material that it contains offers an excellent range of choice in plays suitable for the use of classes in high schools and academies.

"Decem Fabulae" may be purchased through the Clarendon Press, New York. Teachers are advised to secure a copy.

In the introduction to this book, Dr. Rouse makes the following pertinent remarks regarding the use of Latin plays:

These plays may be read, or they may be learnt for acting, or both, and they help to supply reading material for a stage where Latin authors are of little use. The principle once learnt, any teacher may make his own plays: and this is the best thing educationally. He may read or tell a story from Roman history or legend, and call upon certain persons to take its parts: then and there he and his class together may make up the parts, which may be improved or added to in the study. In the end he will have a home-made play, which will need no learning, for it will have been evolved from his class; and with care and judgment he may teach a great deal in this way. Thus also we get from the beginning that which is the supreme end of language teaching, an opportunity for self-expression.

Before referring to the special vocabulary for the English equivalents of Latin words, the pupil should, so far as he can, obtain their meanings from: (1) the context (their thought relation with other words); (2) their relation with other Latin words already known; (3) related English words. Finally, the pupil should consult the vocabulary to check the correctness of his results.

SCAENA PRIMA. IN CASTRIS ETRUSCORUM

Vesperī. Porsenna ante tabernāculum suum stat; ā dextrā¹ Mamilius; ā sinistrā² Tarquinius Superbus; ā tergō Sextus Tarquinius. Ante eōs ducēs militum imperāta manent. Longē ā dextrā stant vigilēs, hī Rōmam prōspectant.

POR. Bene pugnāvistis hodiē, O ducēs, vōs et militēs Etruscī.

DUC. Grātiās tibi agimus, rēx maxime; prō patriā et prō tē pugnāvimus.

POR. Quōmodo, Mamili, hunc montem cēpistī, ubi iam castra posuimus?

SEX. Iāniculum vocātur hic mōns.

SUP. Iāniculum habēmus; facile erit Rōmam capere.

POR. Quōmodo Iāniculum cēpistī, Mamili? Nārrā nōbīs!

DUC. Bene nōs dūxit Mamilius, O rēx maxime!

POR. Hoc sciō; attendite animum et audīte!

MAM. O rēx maxime, Iāniculum tenēbat Pulvillus cōsul cum centum mīlitibus; iuvenis est et malus dux; male imperat neque Rōmānī illī pārēre volunt. At diū nōbīs resistēbant; neque facile erat illud parvum agmen dē monte pellere. Tandem centum mīlītēs circum montem mīsī; hī ā tergō Rōmānōs subitō oppugnant. Pulvillus pavidus tergum vertit; cum quīnquāgintā hominibus effugere potest; cēterōs occīdimus. Ille, tertius in ōrdine ducum [Ducem quendam indicat], prīmus in summum montem pervēnit. Hostēs illum vulnerāverant et signiferum occīderant. Statim ille signum ē dextrā mortuī trāxit et in summō monte posuit.

POR. Bene fēcistī, Mamilī; bene fēcērunt tuī mīlītēs. Tū, dux vulnerāte, hūc venī! [Dux tertius appropinquat.] Accipe¹ hoc praemium! [Armīllam brachiō circumdat. Tum dux sē in ordinem recēpit.] Crās Rōmam oppugnābimus.

DOC. [laetīs clāmōribus.] Crās Rōmam capiēmus.

SUP. Crās rēx iterum erō Rōmānōrum.

SEX. Crās omnēs inimicōs occīdam.

SUP. Crās omnēs nōbilēs in vincula cōnīciam.

SEX. Vae victīs! nōs enim Rōmā expulērunt.

SUP. Ignāvī hominēs rēgem habēre nōlēbant; poenās crās dabunt.

DOC. [murmurant.] Fortēs, nōn ignāvī, sunt Rōmānī. Fortēs hostēs amāmus; ignāvōs ōdimus amīcōs.

POR. Quandō et quōmodo Rōmam oppugnābimus?

SEX. Statim hoc faciēmus; sī enim Rōmānī pontem Sublicium frangent, neque Tiberim trānsire neque urbem intrāre poterimus.

DOC. Nōs quidem hodiē diū pugnāvimus; sine somnō mīlītēs nōn bene pugnābunt.

SUP. Vigil! Vigil!

VIG. Quid vīs, rēx?

SUP. Quid nunc Rōmānī faciunt?

¹ Imperative, third conjugation. Review 184.

VIG. Omnēs intrā moenia sē recēpērunt. Vigilēs tamen ē moenibus prōspectant.

POR. Frēgēruntne pontem?

VIG. Minimē, rēx maxime! Stat pōns.

POR. Quālis erit nox?

VIG. Obscūra; nūbilāre enim coepit, neque lūna fulgēbit. Etiam nunc vigilēs Rōmānōs vidēre nōn possumus; nōn iam pōns in cōspectū est; hāc nocte caecī erunt vigilēs.

POR. Bene dixistis, vigilēs. Hoc igitur cōsiliū omnēs audīte! Quārtā vigiliā, dum Rōmānī adhūc dormiunt, ad pontem silentiō appropinquābimus. Antequam illūc pervēnerimus, nōs neque vidēre neque audīre vigilēs poterunt. Nullā morā pontem trānsībimus et portam facile rumpēmus, dum Rōmānī arma petunt et tōtā urbe trepidant.

duc. Bonum cōsiliū cēpistī, O rēx maxime! Vincēmus.

POR. Hoc cōsiliū, ducēs, militibus nūntiāte! Deinde ūsque ad quārtam vigiliam dormīte!

duc. Audīmus et pārēbimus.

POR. Vigilēs, cum quārtā vigilia erit, ē somnō nōs omnēs excitāte!

VIG. Audīmus et pārēbimus.

SCAENA SECUNDA. RŌMAE

A sinistrā appārent moenia urbis; Tiberis praeter moenia fluit; rīpam ulteriōrem ad portam urbis iungit pōns Sublicius. Vigilēs ē summīs moenibus prōspectant. In rīpā ulteriōre agmen Etruscōrum ad Pontem Sublicium silentiō appropinquat, sed adhūc procul abest, cum sōl surgere incipit. Primā lūce vigilēs hostēs vident.

VIG. I. Audīsne aliquid?

VIG. II. Quam timidus es! Ventus aquam agitat.

VIG. I. Pedēs hominum audiō.

VIG. II. Nōlī hoc crēdere. Sōl mox surget; tum vidēre poterimus.

VIG. I. Aliquid videō. Aliquid sē movet.

VIG. II. Agmen est. Hostēs sunt.

VIG. I. Surgite, Rōmānī. Hostēs adsunt.

VIGILES. Surgite, Rōmānī. Hostēs adsunt.

[Civēs armātī portam aperiunt et prōspectant. Valerius et Pulvillus in pontem currunt.]

VAL. Frangite pontem, cīvēs.

PUL. Tempus nōn dabunt hostēs. Eheu, nōs prīmōs occīdent.
Quid faciam? Quō fugiam?

VAL. Silē, ignāve! Cūr herī frangere pontem nōn iussisti?
Tū enim imperātor erās. Hodiē ego Rōmānīs imperō. [Pulvillus in urbem redit. Multī cīvēs in portā appārent.] Audīte, cīvēs! Sī duo vel trēs hostibus breve temporis spatium resistere poterunt, cēterī pontem frangent. Ita urbem servāre poterimus.

HOR. [inter cīvēs appāret.] Quid dicēbat cōnsul?

CIV. Sī quis hostibus resistet, nōs pontem frangere poterimus.

HOR. Ego, O cōnsul, pontem dēfendam. Quis mēcum hoc prō patriā faciet?

SPU. [ex cīvibus prōdit.] Ego tibi socius erō, fortis Horātī.

HOR. Tū bonus eris socius. Tēcum bene pugnābō. Tamen sī trēs erimus, tōtum hostium agmen facile repellēmus.

TIT. [ex cīvibus prōdit.] Ecce tertium! Prō Rōmā et Rōmānīs cum hīs comitibus pugnābō.

VAL. Vōbīs agō grātiās.

CIV. Vōbīs grātiās agimus.

[Etruscī appropinquant.]

POR. Currite, militēs! Pontem occupāte!

VAL. Properāte vōs! currunt enim hostēs.

[Trēs pontem trānseunt.]

HOR. Ego medius stābō; tū, Spurī, ā dextrā stā; Herminī, tū ā sinistrā!

[Etruscī ad pontem adveniunt.]

POR. Oppugnāte, milītēs! Istōs trēs occīdite et urbem intrāte!

VAL. Secūrēs sūmite, cīvēs! sūmite gladiōs! frangite pontem!

POR. Mamili, mēcum manē! Herī satis pugnābās.

Sextus contrā suam urbem hominēs dūcet.

VAL. Dā mihi secūrem, tū! Ita, ita, lignum frangite.

[Ipse pontem ferit, dum milītēs Etruscī pontem oppugnant.]

SPU. Cavē, Herminī! ā sinistrā oppugnābunt.

TIT. Parātus sum; ecce, undique veniunt.

HOR. Dūra verbera date! Nōn multī eōdem tempore nōs oppugnāre possunt.

PUL. [in moenibus appāret.] Venīte, vōs, ad moenia! [Multī cīvēs in moenia veniunt.] Sagittās mittite! Iacula cōnicite!

SEX. Mēcum venīte, milītēs! Ego Horātium occīdam. Mihi quidem nōn resistet.

CIV. Cuius vōcem audīmus?

VIG. I. Sextus Tarquinius hostēs dūcit.

CIV. Apage, perfide Sexte! Num audēs Rōmam revenīre?

SEX. Mox alia clāmābitis, cum vōs in vincula cōniciam et in crucem mittam.

CIV. I in malam crucem tū! Occīde Sextum, O Horātī! Etiam sī hostēs nōs vīcerint, gaudēbimus quod perfidus Sextus mortuus erit.

[Sextus Horātium oppugnat; Spurius et Titus contrā aliōs pugnant.]

PUL. Cavēte, sagittārii! Nōlite nostrōs occīdere! Cavēte, iaculātōrēs! Suprā capita nostrōrum iacula cōnicite!

VIG. II. Uter vincet? Ecce, noster illum ferit!

CIV. Iō triumphē! Mortuus est Sextus.

PUL. Minimē, surgit. Horātī, iterum ferī!

[Alter Horātium oppugnat, dum Mamilius Sextum ē periculō trahit.]

CIV. Quis auxilium fert?

PUL. Mamilius.

CIV. Ecce, Sextum ē periculō trahit.

VIG. I. Nunc redit; ipse Horātium oppugnābit.

CIV. Eheu, nōn mortuus est Sextus.

VAL. Operam date, cīvēs; ecce, paene frāctus est pōns.

CIV. Iō, Spurius hostem occīdit; nunc alterum ferit.

VIG. II. Eheu! Horātium vulnerāvit Mamilius.

CIV. Eheu! Spuri, auxilium dā!

VIG. I. Ecce! Mamilium repellunt.

VAL. [māgnā vōce.] Redīte, Rōmānī! paene frāctus est pōns.

Iam, iam redī, Horātī!

CIV. Redīte, Rōmānī! paene frāctus est pōns! Nō^s servāvistis; iam vōs servāte!

HOR. Redīte, comitēs! dum tempus manet, redīte!

SPU. } Tū etiam nōbīscum redī! Sine tē nōn redībimus.
TIT. }

CIV. Redīte, fortēs virī! Iam iam cadit pōns.

HOR. Redīte, comitēs! Vōbīs hoc imperō. Cōnsilium habeō bonum; mē hostēs nōn occīdent.

SPU. } Pārēmus. Valē! [Ad portam redeunt.]
TIT. }

CIV. Nōlite Horātium relinquere!

SPU. Ipse imperāvit. Pārēmus. [Spurius et Titus urbem intrant.]

CIV. Sērō redībīs, Horātī. Cadit pōns.

HOR. [Scūtum ad cīvēs cōnicit.] Excipite, cīvēs, scūtum! Nōn honestum est scūtum relinquere. [Gladium in mediōs hostēs cōnicit.] Vōs, hostēs, gladium excipite! Tibi mē committō, Tiberis. [Dum pōns cadit, Horatius in flūmen dēsilit.]

PUL. Quid facit? Vulnerātus est; nōn potest natāre.

CIV. Ita; flūmen trānsit; ad portam natat.

VAL. Dēmittite fūnes! [Cīvēs fūnem dēmittunt.]

CIV. Fūnemprehendit. Trahite! trahite!

OMNES. Trahite! trahite! [Cīvēs Horātium ex aquā in portam trahunt.]

VAL. }	Senātus	} Rōmānus tibi grātiās agit.
PUL. }
CIV. Populusque
OMNES.	Rōmam servāvisti.

JULIUS CAESAR AS DICTATOR

LESSON XCV

CAESAR I

466 Annō ante Christum quīnquāgēsīmō octāvō, C. Iūlius Caesar prōvinciae¹ Galliae ā senātū praefectus est prōcōsul. Eō quidem tempore illa prōvincia, quae ā flūmine Padō per Alpēs Maritimās clārās ōramque maritimam ad Pŷrēnaeōs montēs pertinēbat, iam erat magna. Caesar nōvem per annōs bella gerēbat; quibus bellis plūrima oppida expugnāta sunt, fortissimae gentēs cōfectae victaeque, audācissimī ducēs Gal-lōrum aut captī sunt aut interfectī.

Caesar legiōnēs in Britanniam bis trānsportāvit atque nōminis Rōmānī terrōrem animīs² incolārum illius insulae iniēcit. In flūmine Rhēnō duōs pontēs, quibus cōpiās in Germā-niam trādūxit, aedificāvit. Germānī quī et Galliae et Italiae saepe fuerant terrōrī, tum primum milītēs Rōmānōs suā in terrā vīderunt. Per Germāniae silvās palūdēsque immēnsās in barbarōs legiōnēs dūcere timēbat Caesar; tamen paucōs interfēcit, paucōs captīvōs fēcit, cēterōs quī longius fūgerant capere nōn potuit.

CAESAR II

469 Tandem virtūte prūdentiāque Caesaris, tōta Gallia longō bellō dēfessa, in potestātem Populī Rōmānī vēnit. Multīs victōriīs Caesar ad imperium Rōmānum magnās terrās et nātiōnēs potentissimās adiūnxit. Tantus erat labor liberis Galliae gentibus ¹ iugum Rōmānum impōnere.

Sed Rōmae Pompēius, quī Caesaris potestātem diū timēbat, huius rūinam atque mortem cupiēbat. Quae tamen efficere ille quidem nōn potuit quod Caesar, quem senātus imperium prōcōnsulāre dēpōnere et legiōnēs trādere iusserat, negāvit. Quī tempore comitibus quī aderant sic dīxit Caesar: "Iacta est alea." Tum, sine ūllā morā legiōnem trāns flūmen Rubicōnem in Italiam dūxit. Quō modō inceptum est Bellum Cīvile, quō in bellō Pompēius interfectus est et clārissimus potentissimusque Rōmānōrum omnium factus est Caesar.

ROMAN MONEY

477 For nearly five hundred years after the foundation of the city, the Romans coined no metal except copper. Their copper coins were six in number, each being distinguished by a particular device, which is used with almost perfect uniformity. These coins bore the following names:

- 1 As — having a head of Janus = (268–217, B.C.) $.02
- 2 Sēmis, $\frac{1}{2}$ As — having a head of Jove
- 3 Triēns, $\frac{1}{3}$ As — having a head of Minerva
- 4 Quādrāns, $\frac{1}{4}$ As — having a head of Hercūles
- 5 Sextāns, $\frac{1}{6}$ As — having a head of Mercury
- 6 Uncia, $\frac{1}{12}$ As — having a head of Roma

On the reverse side of each coin was the prow of a ship. On the As appears the numeral 1; on the Sēmis the letter S; on each of the others round dots indicate the number of Unciae, — thus the Uncia has one ●, the Sextāns two ●●, the Quādrāns three ●●●, the Triēns four ●●●●. The relative value and size varied with the weight of the coin.

As (originally twelve ounces of copper)

QUĀDRĀNS

UNCIA

NOTE. The genitives are: assis, sēmissis, trientis, quādrantis, sextantis, ūnciae. All are masculine except ūncia, which is feminine.

EASY STORIES IN LATIN

The selections that follow are from Fabulae Faciles, a volume of hero myths retold in Latin by an Englishman. The author, Mr. Ritchie, undertook the task of writing a series of tales drawn from Greek mythology that might serve to bridge the gap between the easy selections read in the first year and the more difficult selections usually taken up in the second year.

Tragedy, adventure, and romance are mingled in Ritchie's story of the mythical Greek hero, Perseus. Acrisius, the heartless old king, does not hesitate to shut up his infant grandson, together with the child's mother, in a chest and to cast it with its helpless occupants into the raging sea. But in those marvelous times the gods themselves, we are told, often interposed to aid or punish mortals. The story is that Jupiter calmed the waves and steered the frail chest to the island realm of king Polydectes. The king welcomed the castaways, and gave them a home in his palace.

But no sooner had Perseus arrived at manhood than Polydectes, who had grown selfish and cruel with the passing years, commanded the young man to bring to him the head of Medusa. The king knew that if Perseus so much as glanced at the snaky-haired monster he would be instantly turned into stone. In different parts of the world, two kings thought that they were forever rid of Perseus; for Acrisius believed that his grandson had been drowned as a baby, and Polydectes did not doubt that in a short time the young man would be as lifeless as any stone or boulder in the forest where Medusa dwelt. But both kings were mistaken.

Perseus, very much alive, after hairbreadth escapes and incredible feats of valor, returned not only with Medusa's head but with Andromeda, a beautiful princess, as his bride. Into the palace strode the dauntless youth; the horrified Polydectes gave one look at the gory head of Medusa, and his stony heart never beat again.

Not long after, in a great athletic contest, the same power that years before brought to land that frail chest with its precious freight, may have affected Perseus' aim as he played at quoits, for the iron ring flew straight toward Acrisius and laid him low — slain by the grandson whom he had so grievously wronged.

512 PERSEUS V — HE SLAYS MEDUSA

Difficillima rēs erat caput Gorgonis abscidere; eius enim cōspectū hominēs in saxum vertēbantur. Propter hanc causam Minerva speculum Perseō dederat. Ille igitur tergum vertit, et in speculum inspiciēbat; hōc modō ad locum vēnit ubi Medūsa dormiēbat. Tum falce suā caput eius ūnō ictū abs-cīdit. Cēterae Gorgonēs statim ē somnō excitātae sunt, et ubi rem vidērunt, irā commōtae sunt. Arma rapuērunt, et Per-seum occidere volēbant. LESSON VI

THE FIFTH DECLENSION — PERSEUS VII AND VIII

521 Nouns, the genitive singular of which ends in ĕi, are of the fifth declension. Most nouns of this declension are feminine. Diēs, day, is usually masculine.

				CASE	ENDINGS
522 diēs (base di-), m., day rēs (base r-), f., thing
diēs	diēs	res	rēs	-ēs	-ēs
diēi	diērum	reī	rērum	-ēī	-ērum

diem	diēs	rem	rēs	-em	-ēs
diē	diēbus	rē	rēbus	-ē	-ēbus

523 EXERCISES (REVIEW 203, 227)

1 We remained one day, many days, a long time. 2 How many hours has a day? 3 Our friend was with us a part of one day. 4 The end of the day was clear. 5 We shall make a journey of many days. 6 Did you catch sight of the fearful thing? 7 These facts do not frighten me. 8 The appearance of many things is terrible. 9 But the things themselves are often good. 10 The weather (tempus) is suitable for the event.

528 PERSEUS VIII — THE RESCUE (see 531)

At Perseus ubi haec vīdit, gladium suum ēdūxit, et postquam talāria induit, in āera sublātus est. Tum dēsUPER in mōnstrum impetum subitō fēcit, et gladiō suō collum eius graviter vulnerāvit. Mōnstrum ubi sēnsit vulnus, fremitum horribilem ēdidit, et sine morā tōtum corpus in aquam mersit. Perseus dum circum litus volat, reditum eius exspectābat. Mare autem intereā undique sanguine īnficitur. Post breve tempus bēlua rursus caput sustulit; mox tamen ā Perseō ictū graviōre vulnerāta est. Tum iterum sē sub undās mersit, neque posteā vīsa est.

532 HOW THE ROMANS MEASURED LENGTH

The unit of Lineal Measure was the Pēs or Foot, the Pēs being supposed to represent the length of the foot of a well-proportioned man. Various divisions and multiples of the Pēs were named after standards derived from the human frame.

Pēs = 16 Digi¹ (finger-breadths)

Pēs = 4 Palmi² (handbreadths)

Sesquipēs³ = 1 Cubitum (length from the elbow to the extremity of the middle finger)

5 Pedēs = 1 Passus.

5000 Pedēs = 1000 Passūs = Mille Passuum

1 Roman Mile = 4850 English feet

533 ROMAN WRITING

Ordinary writing was done on waxen tablets (tabulae cērātae), which were thin pieces of wood covered over with wax (cēra), by means of a stilus, usually made of iron, in the shape of a pencil. Ink (ātrāmentum), made of soot and burned resin, was also used by means of a sharpened reed.

¹ From digitus, -ī, m., finger.

² From palmus, -ī, m., palm of the hand.

³ a foot and a half.

536 PERSEUS X — POLYDECTES AND ACRISIUS MEET THEIR DOOM

Postquam Perseus ad insulam nāvem appulit, sē ad locum contulit ubi māter ōlim habitāverat; sed domum invēnit vacuam et omnīnō dēsertam. Trīs diēs per tōtam insulam mātrem quaerēbat; tandem quārtō diē ad templum Diānae pervēnit. Hūc Danaē refūgerat, quod Polydectem timēbat. Perseus ubi haec cognōvit, irā magnā commōtus est; ad rēgiam Polydectis sine morā contendit, et ubi eō vēnit, statim in ātrium inrūpit. Polydectēs magnō timōre adfectus est et fugere volēbat. Dum tamen ille fugit, Perseus caput Medūsae mōnstrāvit; ille autem simul atque hoc vīdit, in saxum versus est.

Post haec Perseus cum uxōre suā ad urbem Acrisī rediit. Ille autem ubi Perseum vīdit, magnō terrōre adfectus est; nam propter ōrāculum illud nepōtem suum adhūc timēbat. In Thessaliā igitur ad urbem Lārīsam statim refūgit, frūstrā tamen; neque enim fātum suum vītāvit. Post paucōs annōs rēx Lārīsae lūdōs magnōs fēcīt; nūntiōs in omnīs partīs dīmiserat et diē ēdixerat. Multī ex omnibus urbibus Graeciae ad lūdōs convēnērunt. LESSON IX

PARTICIPLES — THE ARGONAUTS I

538 A regular, transitive verb has four participles. Like other adjectives, participles agree in gender, number, and case, with the words to which they relate (93).

539 Participles of Portō

PASSIVE

Pres. portāns, carrying

—————

Fut. portātūrus, about (going) to carry portandus, about (going) to be carried

Perf. ———

portātus (having been) carried

540 The present participle may be formed by adding -ns to the present stem: portā + ns, monē + ns, dūce + ns. But verbs of the fourth conjugation and verbs of the third conjugation ending in -iō have -iē before the -ns: audiēns, capiēns.

Form the present participles of: laudō, nūntiō, doceō, regō, mittō, iaciō, mūniō, ferō. For the declension, see 631.

541 The past (perfect passive) participle is regularly the fourth principal part of a regular transitive verb. You learn this participle when you memorize the principal parts.

Write the past participle of laudō, nūntiō, doceō, iubeō, mittō, iaciō, mūniō, reperiō, ferō.

542 The future active participle may be formed by changing the -us¹ of the past participle to -ūrus: portāt(us) + ūrus = portātūrus.

Form the future active participle of: laudō, nūntiō, dō, doceō, iubeō, mittō, iaciō, mūniō, ferō.

¹ The future active participle is sometimes given as the fourth principal part of a verb (especially of an intransitive) which has no past participle.

543 The gerundive (future passive participle) may be formed by changing the -ns of the present participle to -ndus: portā(ns) + ndus = portandus.

544 Write the four participles, with English equivalents, of appellō, terreō, iubeō, mittō, capiō, pūniō, ferō.

THE ARGONAUTS

For more than two thousand years young and old have been thrilled by the story of Jason's high adventures on his bold quest of the Golden Fleece.

A wicked uncle, Pelias, had driven Aeson, Jason's father, from the throne of Thessaly. Jason was to be his next victim; but certain good friends spirited the boy out of the country, and reported to the tyrant, Pelias, that the lad was dead. Even then Pelias was not happy, for the dread of retribution tortured the guilty king. To allay his fears, he sent trusted men to Delphi to consult the god Apollo. The oracle warned Pelias to be on guard against anyone who should come into his presence with one foot bare.

Some years later, Jason, who had lost one shoe on his journey, entered the palace unrecognized by his uncle. The terror-stricken king commanded the young man speedily to set out upon a long and perilous expedition in search of the Golden Fleece. Although he well knew the difficulty and risk, Jason with his adventurous band soon set sail upon their staunch ship, the Argo. When the ship had disappeared below the horizon, Pelias breathed a sigh of relief, for he knew that there was not one chance in a thousand that Jason would ever return.

ARGONAUTS I — THE WICKED UNCLE

Erant ōlim in Thessaliā duo frātrēs, quōrum alter Aesōn, Peliās alter appellātus est. Ex hīs Aesōn rēgnum obtinuerat; at post paucōs annōs Peliās rēgnī cupiditāte adductus nōn modo frātrem suum expulit, sed etiam in animō habēbat Iāsonem, Aesonis filium, interficere. Quīdam tamen ex amīcīs Aesonis, ubi sententiam Peliae cognōvērunt, puerum ē tantō periculō ēripere cōstituērunt. Noctū igitur Iāsonem ex urbe abstulērunt, et cum posterō diē ad rēgem rediissent,¹ eī renūntiāvērunt puerum mortuum esse. Quae cum Peliās audivisset,² etsī rē vērā magnum gaudium percipiēbat, speciem tamen dolōris prae-buit et quae causa esset³ mortis quaesivit. Illi autem cum bene intellegerent⁴ dolōrem eius falsum esse, nesciō quam fābulam dē morte puerī finxērunt.

547 A participle agrees in gender, number, and case with its substantive. Active participles of transitive verbs may take both direct and indirect objects. In Latin, participles may express cause, concession, time, etc., which, in English, often are best expressed by subordinate clauses:

- 1 Peliās, speciem dolōris prae-bēns, magnum gaudium percēpit.

Although presenting an appearance of sorrow, Pelias felt a great joy.

- 2 Aesonis amīcī, ad rēgiam reditūri, fābulam dē puerī morte finxērunt.

When they were about to return to the palace, Aeson's friends made up a story about the boy's death.

- 3 Peliās, ōrāculō territus, Iāsonem necārī volēbat.

Because Pelias was frightened by the oracle, he wished Jason to be slain.

² cum . . . audivisset, when . . . he had heard.

³ quae causa esset (imperfect subjunctive), what the reason was.

⁴ cum . . . intellegerent (imperfect subjunctive), since they understood.

EXERCISES

1 Two brothers, the one called Aeson, the other Pelias, once lived in Thessaly. 2 Pelias wished to slay Aeson (who had been) driven out of his kingdom. 3 Aeson feared his brother (because he was) led on (addūcō) by a desire for (of) the supreme power. 4 Aeson, (when) driven from his kingdom, wished to save the boy. 5 Pelias did not see Aeson's friends (as they were) bearing the boy out of the city. 6 Pelias heard the story of the friends (as they were) reporting Jason's death. 7 The joy (gaudium) of the men (as they were) about to bear the boy out of the city was great. 8 The joy of the evil king (as he was) about to send Jason to his death was great.

LESSON X

THE SUBJUNCTIVE IN PURPOSE CLAUSES — THE ARGONAUTS II

548 The subjunctive mood has four tenses. The future and future perfect are lacking. Name the tenses of the subjunctive. The forms of the subjunctive are regular.

In the present subjunctive of the first conjugation, instead of the stem vowel a of the indicative, we have the vowel e. This vowel is an old acquaintance. You met it in the future of the third and fourth conjugations (all persons except the first singular). Review the future of dūcō (289).

HOW PURPOSE IS EXPRESSED

AFFIRMATIVE ACTIVE

Veniō ut tē servem, I come to (in order that I may) save you.
Veniēs ut mē servēs, You will come to (that you may) save me.
Venit ut mē servet, He comes to (that he may) save me.
Venīmus ut vōs servēmus, We come (in order) to save you.
Veniētis ut nōs servētis, You will come (in order) to save us.
Veniunt ut nōs servent, They come (in order) to save us.

AFFIRMATIVE PASSIVE

Fugiō ut server, I flee (in order) that I may be saved.
Fugis ut servēris, You flee (in order) that you may be saved.
Fugiet ut servētur, He will flee (in order) that he may be saved.
Fūgerimus ut servēmur, We shall have fled that we may be saved.
Fugitis ut servēmini, You flee (in order) that you may be saved.
Fugiunt ut serventur, They flee (in order) that they may be saved.

550 A clause that denotes the purpose of the action of a verb is adverbial. Purpose may be expressed by an adjective (relative) clause: Peliās amīcōs mittet quī puerum necent, Pelias will send friends to slay the boy.

551 Conjugate portō, liberō, nūntiō, dō, in the present subjunctive, active and passive.

EXERCISES

1 Aeson's friends will betake themselves into the city to tell the story of (about) the boy's death. 2 Certain of (ex) his friends will tell this story to Aeson's brother in order to render (give) aid to Jason. 3 (Because) frightened by his brother, Aeson will hasten from the city to save his own life. 4 His friends, influenced (addūcō) by Aeson's grief, bear Jason out of the city to save the boy. 5 Will Aeson send a certain friend into the palace to slay his (own) brother? 6 Does Pelias wish to slay his brother in order to seize the supreme power? 7 Aeson's friends are willing (wish) to tell the brother a story in order to save Jason's life.

⁴ was about to make.

556 All regular conjugations, except the first, have the suffix a in all forms of the present subjunctive. Why does the first conjugation not have the same suffix? The suffix a is an old acquaintance. You met it in the forms dūcam, dūcar, audiam, audiar, of the future indicative. Review these tenses (646, 648).

557 The vowel e or i before the final ō, as given in such verbs as moneō, eō, capiō, audiō, is retained before the subjunctive suffix (moneam, eam, capiam, audiam).

1 Puer venit ut amicum videat.

The boy comes to see his friend.

2 Hostēs fugiunt nē capiantur.

The enemies flee in order that they may not be taken.

In 1 purpose is expressed affirmatively by the subjunctive with ut; in 2 negatively by the subjunctive with nē.

EXERCISES

1 The soldiers are hastening in order to give aid. 2 Who will come to save the city? 3 The leaders come to make peace. 4 Men will be sent that peace may be made. 5 The enemy is hastening to seize the town. 6 A legion is being sent in order that the city may not be taken.

ARGONAUTS III — THE GOLDEN FLEECE

Iāsōn igitur cum calceum āmissum nūllō modō recipere posset, alterō pede nūdō in rēgiam pervēnit. Quem cum Peliās vidisset, subitō timōre adfectus est; intellēxit enim hunc esse hominem quem ōrāculum dēmōnstrāvisset. Hoc igitur cōnsilium iniit. Rēx erat quīdam Aeētēs, quī rēgnum Colchidis illō tempore obtinēbat. Huic commissum erat vellus illud aureum quod Phrixus ōlim ibi reliquerat. Cōstituit igitur Peliās Iāsonī negōtium dare ut hōc vellere potirētur;¹ cum enim rēs esset magnī periculī, eum in itinere peritūrum esse spērābat. Iāsonem igitur ad sē arcessivit, et eum cohortātus² quid fieri vellet exposuit. Ille etsī intellegēbat rem esse difficillimam, negōtium libentur suscēpit.

EXERCISES

1 Pelias will send friends to a certain city to seize Jason. 2 Is Aeson sending a messenger to the same city that his grandson may not be taken? 3 Both the friends and the messenger will hasten swiftly, in order that they may find the boy. 4 By the order of the king, the messengers will go to the city to slay Jason. 5 Aeson's messenger hastens very swiftly to the city in which Jason is living that the boy's life may be saved.

¹ Ut hōc vellere potirētur, that he might get possession of this fleece. Potirētur requires the ablative instead of the accusative.

² cohortātus, having encouraged.

LESSON XII

THE PRESENT AND THE PAST PARTICIPLE—ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE—THE ARGONAUTS IV

561 ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE

The past participle, the present participle, and sometimes another noun, in agreement with a noun or pronoun in the ablative, may be used in a construction called ablative absolute. The ablative absolute, though grammatically independent, may express time, means, manner, cause, condition, or concession.

562

- 1 Soleā āmissā, Iāsōn alterō pede nūdō in rēgiam vēnit.

Because he had lost a shoe (a shoe having been lost) Jason came into the palace with one foot bare.

- 2 Amīcīs fābulam nārrantibus, Peliās erat laetus.

While his friends were telling the story, Pelias was happy.

- 3 Iāsone puerō, Peliās timōre adfectus est.

Although Jason was a boy, Pelias was moved by fear.

565 ARGONAUTS IV—THE BUILDING OF THE ARGO

Cum tamen Colchis multōrum diērum iter ab eō locō abesset, nōluit Iāsōn nāvigāre sōlus. Dīmīsīt igitur nūntiōs in omnīs partīs, quī causam itineris docērent et diem certam conveniendī dīcerent. Intereā, postquam omnia quae sunt ūsuī ad armandās¹ nāvis comportsrī iussit, negōtium dedit Argō cuidam, quī summam nauticārum rērum scientiam habēbat, ut nāvem aedificāret. In hīs rēbus circiter decem diēs cōsumptī sunt. Argus enim, quī operī praeerat, tantam diligentiam adhibēbat ut nē nocturnum quidem tempus ad labōrem intermitteret. 566

EXERCISES

1 While Argus was building the ship, Jason ordered a large number of men who had a knowledge of sailing (nāvigandī) to assemble (conveniō) near the sea. 2 After the ship had been built by a certain Argus, Jason set (dīcō) the day for sailing. 3 Because so great diligence had been shown by Argus, a large ship was built in about ten days. 4 Since the whole ship had been made of oak (ē rōbore), Jason was able to cross the wide sea with a large number of men. 5 When everything (all things) had been placed on the ship, Jason decided to sail at once.

¹ For equipping (about to be equipped) the ships; armandās (540) agrees in gender, number, and case with nāvis. ² See note 1.

LESSON XIII

INFINITIVES — THE ARGONAUTS V

567 Review the present infinitive active and passive (316).

A regular transitive verb has six infinitives (but the future passive infinitive is rarely used).

568

INFINITIVES

	ACTIVE	PASSIVE
Pres.	portāre , to carry	portārī , to be carried
Fut.	portātūrus esse , to be about to carry	[portātum īrī] , to be about to be carried
Perf.	portāvisse , to have carried	portātus esse , to have been carried

569 1 The future active infinitive is formed by adding esse to the future active participle (542).

2 The perfect active infinitive is formed by adding -isse to the perfect stem (156; 194; 213; 295).

3 The perfect passive infinitive is formed by adding esse to the past participle (541).

4 Portātūrus and portātus agree with the subject of the infinitive in gender, number, and case.

Learn the infinitives of sum (650), and the infinitives below. Give English for every infinitive.

INFINITIVES

	ACTIVE	PASSIVE	ACTIVE	PASSIVE
Pres.	monēre	monērī	dūcere	dūcī
Fut.	monitūrus esse	[monitum īrī]	ductūrus esse	[ductum īrī]
Perf.	monuisse	monitus esse	dūxisse	ductus esse
Pres.	capere	capī	audire	audīrī
Fut.	captūrus esse	[captum īrī]	auditūrus esse	[auditum īrī]
Perf.	cēpisse	captus esse	audivisse	auditus esse

572 Write, with English translations, and then give orally, the infinitives of: aedificō, nūntiō, doceō, iubeō, mittō, expellō, iaciō, pūniō. Imitate the model on previous page (568).

ARGONAUTS V — OFF AT LAST

Intereā is diēs aderat quem Iāsōn per nūntiōs ēdixerat, et ex omnibus regiōnibus Graeciae multī, quōs aut reī novitās aut spēs glōriae movēbat, undique conveniēbant. Trāditum est autem in hōc numerō fuisse Herculem, Orpheum, citharoedum praeclārissimum, Thēseum, Castorem, multōsque aliōs quōrum nōmina sunt nōtissima. Ex hīs Iāsōn, quōs arbitrātus est ad omnia perīcula subeunda parātissimōs esse, eōs ad numerum quīnquāgintā dēlēgit et sociōs sibi adiūnxit; tum paucōs diēs commorātus, ut ad omnīs cāsus subsidia comparāret, nāvem dēdūxit, et tempestātem ad nāvigandum¹ idōneam nactus magnō cum plausū omnium solvit.

574

INFINITIVES AS IN ENGLISH

1 Will many (men) wish to assemble (conveniō) from all (tōtus) Greece? 2 Was Jason prepared to sail over (in) the wide sea? 3 Will a large number of men from all parts of the kingdom be willing to undergo great dangers? 4 Jason wished everything (omnia) to be prepared for (ad) the long journey. 5 He had ordered messengers to be sent into all parts (of the country). 6 Brave men always can be moved by the hope of glory.

LESSON XIV

INFINITIVES IN INDIRECT STATEMENT — THE ARGONAUTS VI

INFINITIVES IN INDIRECT STATEMENT (339-341)

575

- 1 Iāsōn dicit Argum nāvem aedificāre.

Jason says that Argus is building the ship.

- 2 Iāsōn dicit Argum nāvem aedificātūrum esse.

Jason says that Argus will build the ship.

- 3 Iāsōn dicit Argum nāvem aedificāvisse.

Jason says that Argus has built the ship.

- 4 Iāsōn dicit nāvem aedificārī.

Jason says that the ship is being built.

- 5 Iāsōn dicit nāvem ab Argō aedificātam esse.

Jason says that the ship has been built by Argus.

576 In indirect statement note that the verb must be in the infinitive with its subject in the accusative. The future active infinitive, and the perfect passive must agree in gender, number, and case with its subject. In example 2 (575) aedificātūrum agrees with Argum, and in example 5 aedificātam agrees with nāvem.

Aedificāre indicates that Argus was building the ship when Jason made the statement; aedificātūrum esse, that he was going to build the ship later; aedificāvisse that he already had built the ship.

INFINITIVES IN INDIRECT STATEMENT (Continued) — THE ARGONAUTS VII

581 INFINITIVES IN INDIRECT STATEMENT AFTER A PAST TENSE

- 1 Iāsōn dixit sociōs nāvem aedificāre.

Jason said that his comrades were building the ship.

- 2 Iāsōn dixit sociōs nāvem aedificātūrōs esse.

Jason said that his comrades would build the ship.

- 3 Iāsōn dixit sociōs nāvem aedificāvisse.

Jason said that his comrades had built the ship.

- 4 Iāsōn dixit nāvem aedificārī.

Jason said that the ship was being built.

- 5 Iāsōn dixit nāvem aedificātam esse.

Jason said that the ship had been built.

582 Rule. In indirect statement, the action expressed by the present tense of an infinitive is represented as taking place at the same time as the saying (thinking, knowing, etc.), the action of the future tense as about to take place after the saying, the action of the perfect as already having taken place before the saying.

583 In 578, re-write the English sentences, changing the first verb in each sentence to a past tense and making the necessary changes in the tenses of the other verbs, for example:

- 1 I knew that the king did not love his brother.

EXERCISES

1 Because the king of a certain island was a friend, Jason said that he would stay there a short time. 2 Certain inhabitants of the same island thought that the Argonauts were enemies. 3 Jason saw that presently there would be a battle on the beach. 4 After peace had been made, the Argonauts saw that many inhabitants of the island had been slain. 5 After weighing anchor (the anchor having been lifted), the Argonauts were prepared to sail, but they saw that they did not have enough (of) water. 6 Certain sailors said that they would seek water in another part of the island. 7 The sailors said that they had found the water but that they had not been able to find Hylas (Hylam). 8 Jason knew that certain nymphs (Nympha) had carried off (auferō) the boy.

LESSON XVI

IMPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE — PRESENT SUBJUNCTIVE Sum, Possum, Volō — PURPOSE CLAUSES (Continued) — RESULT CLAUSES — THE ARGONAUTS VIII

587 THE IMPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE

The imperfect subjunctive is formed by adding the personal endings (2, 22) to the present active infinitive.

Learn the imperfect subjunctive of verbs in 644, 645, 646, 647, 648, 650, 651, 653, 654, 656.

Give the imperfect subjunctive, active and passive, of expectō, persuādeō, cognōscō, sentiō.

588 THE PRESENT SUBJUNCTIVE (Continued)

Review 555, 556. Learn the present subjunctives of sum (650) and possum (651); also of volō, nōlō, and mālō (653).

589 PRESENT AND IMPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE IN PURPOSE CLAUSES

Review 557.

1 Puer domi manet ut sit tecum.

The boy stays at home to be (that he may be) with you.

2 Puer domi manebat ut esset tecum.

The boy stayed at home to be (that he might be) with you.

3 Dux veniet ne urbs capiatur.

The leader will come that the city may not be taken.

4 Dux venit ne urbs caperetur.

The leader came that the city might not be taken.

590 Rule. Purpose may be expressed by the subjunctive, affirmatively with ut, negatively with ne. The present subjunctive is used in dependence upon a present, future, or future perfect indicative; the imperfect subjunctive in dependence upon the imperfect, perfect, and pluperfect.

591 THE SUBJUNCTIVE IN RESULT CLAUSES

1 Tanta est Argi diligentia ut navem celeriter aedificet.

So great is Argus' industry that he builds the ship quickly.

2 Tanta erat tempestās ut cursum tenēre nōn possent.

So great was the storm that they could not hold their course.

592 Rule. Result is expressed by the subjunctive, affirmatively with ut, negatively with ut nōn. In tense, the subjunctives commonly follow the rule for purpose (590).

593 Change the verb in each independent clause in 558 to a past tense and then translate each sentence into Latin.

594 ARGONAUTS VIII — STARVATION THREATENS

Post haec Argonautae ad Thrāciam cursum tenuērunt, et postquam ad oppidum Salmydēssum nāvem appulērunt, in terram ēgressī sunt. Ibi cum ab incolīs quaesissent quis rēgnum eius regiōnis obtinēret, certiōrēs factī sunt Phīneum quendam tum rēgem esse. Cognōvērunt etiam hunc caecum esse et dīrō quōdam suppliciō adfici, quod ōlim sē crūdēlissimum in filiōs suōs prae buisset. Cuius supplicī hoc erat genus. Missa erant ā Iove mōnstra quaedam speciē horribilī, quae capita virginum, corpora volucrum habēbant. Hae volucrēs, quae Harpȳiae appellābantur, Phīneō summam molestiam adferēbant; quotiēns enim ille accubuerat, veniēbant et cibum appositum statim auferēbant. Quae cum ita essent, Phīneus famē moritūrus erat.

EXERCISES

1 Pelias has so great a desire for (of) supreme power that he wishes to slay Jason. 2 Aeson was in so great danger that he could not remain in his kingdom. 3 When Jason's death had been reported, Pelias showed so great joy (gaudium) that even his friends feared him. 4 Aeson's friends bore Jason out of the city to save the boy's life. 5 Jason lived far away from the city that he might not be seen by the king. 6 But after a few years Jason was so brave that he no longer feared the king.

LESSON XVII

PLUPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE — Cum CIRCUMSTANTIAL — THE ARGONAUTS IX

596 THE PLUPERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE

ACTIVE		PASSIVE
dūxissem	dūxissēmus	ductus essem	ductī essēmus
dūxissēs	dūxissētis	ductus essēs	ductī essētis
dūxisset	dūxissent	ductus esset	ductī essent

The pluperfect subjunctive active is formed by adding the active personal endings to the perfect active infinitive (portāvisse + m, etc.).

The pluperfect subjunctive passive is formed by adding the imperfect subjunctive of sum to the past participle. The past participle here, as always, must agree with its subject.

Conjugate the imperfect and the pluperfect subjunctive active and passive of portō, moneō, audiō, ferō; the imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive active of sum, possum, eō, volō.

597 Cum CIRCUMSTANTIAL

Rule. Cum, when, requires the imperfect and the pluperfect subjunctive to denote the circumstances under which an action or event occurred in past time.

598 Note. Use the imperfect subjunctive to represent incomplete action in past time with cum circumstantial.

599 EXERCISES

(These sentences have already occurred in "The Argonauts.")

- 1 Quem cum vīdisset Peliās subitō timōre affectus est.
- 2 Argonautae cum vīdissent rēgem occīsum esse magnum dolōrem percēpērunt.
- 3 Peliās cum haec audīvisset speciem doloris praebuit.
- 4 Cum ille negāret sē hoc factūrum esse puerum abstulērunt. 5 Cum iam dilūcēsceret, sēnsērunt incolae sē errāre. 6 Nymphae cum iuvenem vidissent eī persuādere cōnātae sunt. 7 Cum ad rēgem rediissent eī renūntiāvērunt puerum mortuum esse.

ARGONAUTS IX — PHINEUS IS SAVED

Rēs igitur hōc in locō erant cum Argonautae nāvem appulērunt. Phīneus autem simul atque audīvit eōs in suōs finīs ēgressōs esse, magnopere gāvīsus est. Sciēbat enim quantam opiniōnem virtūtis Argonautae habērent, nec dubitābant quī sibi auxilium ferrent. Nūntium igitur ad nāvem mīsīt, quī Iāsonem sociōsque ad rēgiam vocāret. Eō cum vēnissent, Phīneus dēmōstrāvit quantō in periculō suae rēs essent, et prōmīsīt sē magna praemia datūrum esse, sī illī remedium repperissent. Argonautae negōtium libentur suscēpērunt, et ubi hōra vēnit, cum rēge accubuērunt; at simul ac cēna apposita est, Harpŷiae cēnāculum intrāvērunt et cibum auferre cōnābantur. Argonautae primum gladiis volucrēs petiērunt; cum tamen vidērent hoc nihil prōdesse, Zētēs et Calais, quī ālis instructī erant, in āera sē sublevāvērunt, ut dēsuper impetum facerent. Quod cum sēnsissent Harpŷiae, rei novitāte perterritae statim aufūgērunt, neque postea umquam rediērunt.

EXERCISES

1 When Jason was crossing a river, he lost (āmittō) one sandal. 2 When Jason had come to the city, he decided to go to the king with one foot bare (nūdus). 3 When Pelias had seen Jason's bare foot he was frightened. 4 When Pelias had called together his friends, he entered (ineō) into a certain plan. 5 When Argus was building the ship, many (men) came (together) from all parts of Greece. 6 So great was the hope of glory, that the Argonauts did not fear the dangers of the journey. 7 When the Argonauts had driven their ship to a certain town, they learned that Phineus was king there.

LESSON XVIII

PERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE — INDIRECT QUESTIONS — THE ARGONAUTS X

602

PERFECT SUBJUNCTIVE

PASSIVE

dūxerim	dūxerīmus	ductus sim	ductī simus
dūxeris	dūxeritis	ductus sis	ductī sītis
dūxerit	dūxerint	ductus sit	ductī sint

Compare the active voice with the future perfect indicative active, and the passive with the perfect indicative passive.

Conjugate portō, moneō, capiō, audiō, in the four tenses of the subjunctive, active and passive, and sum in the active.

603

INDIRECT QUESTIONS

In a direct question the exact words of the questioner are quoted and should be enclosed in quotation marks:

You ask me: "What have you?"

An indirect question expresses the thought of the questioner, but not his exact words:

You ask what I have.

In writing Latin, failure to recognize an indirect question is disastrous, for in Latin the verb of every indirect question must be in the subjunctive.

A pupil must watch as sharply for the signs of an indirect question as an engineer on an express train looks for his signals. The signs in English that mean "Danger! Indirect Question ahead" are: a word of asking, questioning, showing, teaching, etc., followed by an object clause that begins with an interrogative word or phrase (who? what? why? how? where? when? for what reason? on what account? etc.).

LESSON XIX

INDIRECT QUESTIONS (Continued) — SEQUENCE OF TENSES — THE ARGONAUTS XI

608 INDIRECT QUESTIONS AND SEQUENCE OF TENSES

The following exercise illustrates three important principles in Latin usage: (1) The subjunctive is required in indirect questions. (2) Only the present and perfect subjunctive may be used in a clause dependent upon a verb in the present, future or future perfect indicative. (3) Only the imperfect and pluperfect subjunctive may be used in a clause dependent upon an imperfect, perfect or pluperfect indicative.

1 Rogō quid dicās, dixerīs.

I ask what you are saying, have said.

2 Rogābō quid dicās, dixerīs.

I shall ask what you are saying, have said.

3 Rogāverō quid dicās, dixerīs.

I shall have asked what you are saying, have said.

4 Rogābam quid dicerēs, dixissēs.

I was asking what you were saying, had said.

5 Rogāvī quid dicerēs, dixissēs.

I asked what you were saying, had said.

6 Rogāveram quid dicerēs, dixissēs.

I had asked what you were saying, had said.

The present subjunctive denotes incomplete (unfinished) action after the present, future, and future perfect indicative; the perfect subjunctive complete (finished) action.

The imperfect subjunctive denotes incomplete (unfinished) action after the imperfect, perfect, and pluperfect indicative, the pluperfect complete (finished) action.

The present, future, and future perfect are called the primary tenses of the indicative, the present and perfect, the primary tenses of the subjunctive.

VOCABULARY

antequam, conj., *before*priusquam, conj., before ēveniō, ēvenire, ēvēnī, ēvenrogō (1), *ask, request*tūrus, happen, turn out

610 The imperfect, perfect (usually), and pluperfect are called the secondary tenses of the indicative; the imperfect and pluperfect, the secondary tenses of the subjunctive.

611 Rule. Primary tenses of the indicative in an independent clause must be followed by primary tenses of the subjunctive in the dependent clause, and secondary tenses of the indicative must be followed by secondary tenses of the subjunctive.

612 ARGONAUTS XI — THE SYMPLEGADES (Continued)

Tum in prōrā stāns columbam quam in manū tenēbat ēmīsīt. Illa rēctā viā per medium spatium volāvit, et priusquam rūpēs cōnflīxērunt, incolumis ēvāsīt caudā tantum āmissā. 613

EXERCISES

1 After hearing the story of his friends, Pelias asked what had been the cause of the boy's death. 2 The friends did not tell the king to what place they had borne the small boy. 3 The king does not ask in what manner his friends have slain the boy. 4 We shall not ask for how long a time (quam diū) Jason lived at the home of a certain centaur (centaurus). 5 When Jason had heard the king's command, he asked in what city the palace was.

DEPONENT VERBS

In "The Argonauts," thus far, the following are some of the verbs of passive form that have been translated as though they were active: arbitrātus est, he thought; ut hōc vellere potirētur, in order that he might get possession of this fleece; noluit Iāson sōlus proficisci, Jason did not wish to set out alone; veritus nē rēgnum āmitteret, fearing (having feared) that he might lose his throne.

Verbs like the above, which are conjugated in the passive voice but have an active meaning, are called deponents.

Deponent verbs have "laid aside" their active forms and their passive meanings.

PRINCIPAL PARTS OF DEPONENTS

arbitror, I think arbitrārī, to think arbitrātus sum, I thought

vereor, I fear

verērī, to fear

veritus sum, I feared

ēgredior, I step out

ēgredī, to step out

ēgressus sum, I stepped out potior, I get possession of potirī, to get possession of potītus sum, I got possession of

Learn the models (649). Give synopses of the verbs given above.

Remember that a deponent verb has a future active infinitive, and also a present and a future active participle.

ARGONAUTS XII — A HEAVY TASK

Brevi intermissio spatio Argonautae ad flumen Phasim venerunt, quod in finibus Colchorum erat. Ibi cum navem appulissent et in terram egressi essent, statim ad regem Aeetem se contulerunt et ab eo postulaverunt ut vellus aureum sibi traderetur. Ille cum audisset quam ob causam Argonautae venissent, ira commotus est et diu negabat se vellus traditurum esse. Tandem tamen, quod sciebat Iasonem non sine auxilio deorum hoc negotium suscepisse, mutata sententia promisit se vellus traditurum, si Iason labores duos difficillimos prius perfecisset; et cum Iason dixisset se ad omnia pericula subeunda paratum esse, quid fieri vellet ostendit. Primum iungendi erant duo tauri specie horribili, qui flammam ex ore edebant; tum his iunctis ager quidam arandus erat et dentes draconis serendi. His auditis Iason etsi rem esse summi periculi intellegebat, tamen, ne hanc occasionem rei bene gerendae amitteret, negotium suscepit.

EXERCISES

- 1 Iason sublatis ancoris navem solvit.

Weighing anchors (the anchors having been raised), Jason set sail.

- 2 Quidam ex Argonautis in terram egressi aquam quaerebant.
Certain of the Argonauts going ashore (having stepped out upon the land) were searching for water.

- 3 Iason taurus iuncturus erat et agrum araturus.

Jason was going (was about) to yoke the oxen and plow the field.

4 Taurī Iāsonī iungendī erant et agrī arandī.

Jason had to yoke the oxen and plow the fields, or For Jason there were oxen to be yoked and fields to be plowed.

The past participle of a deponent verb, being regularly active in meaning, in a measure takes the place of the lacking perfect active participle.

In sentence 1 we use the ablative absolute, sublātīs ancorīs, because the past participle of tollō is passive in meaning.

In sentence 2 ēgressī is active and agrees in gender, number, and case with quidam. The ablative absolute may not be used when its substantive denotes the same person or thing as either the subject or the object of the verb of the principal clause.

Sentence 3 illustrates a common use of the future active participle: Iāsōn agrum arābit, Jason will plow the field; Iāsōn agrum arātūrus est, Jason is about, intends, or is going to plow the field.

Sentence 4 illustrates a common use of the gerundive (future passive participle): Agrī Iāsonī arandī sunt, Jason must plow the fields, or, For Jason there are fields to be plowed, or, Jason has to plow the fields. The gerundive may denote duty, obligation, or necessity. The dative (Iāsonī) denotes the person who has the duty to perform. This dative, really a dative of possessor (169), when used with the gerundive, is sometimes called the dative of agent.

EXERCISES

- 1 Jason was about to sail but judged that the weather (tempestās) was not suitable.
- 2 Jason, judging (having judged) that the weather was not suitable, decided to delay a few hours.
- 3 Jason, who intends (is about) to select very brave (men) as comrades, will delay a few days.
- 4 Argus must build a good ship and the Argonauts must undergo all dangers bravely.
- 5 When the Argonauts had gone forward (for) a few days, they came to a certain island. 6 Going ashore (ēgressus in terram) and advancing a short distance, Jason delayed there a few hours. 7 He tried (cōnor) to find out who the inhabitants of the island were. 8 On seeing certain of the inhabitants Jason, fearing to delay for a longer time, was about to flee. 9 But the inhabitants, judging (having judged) that the Argonauts were unfriendly, suddenly made an attack. 10 Nevertheless, when their king had been killed, the inhabitants had to beg for peace.

RULES

623 (The asterisk refers to a footnote belonging to paragraph to which reference is made.)

- 8 The subject of a finite verb is in the nominative case.
- 9 A finite verb agrees with its subject in number and person.
- 16 A predicate noun has the same case as the subject of the verb.
- 17 A predicate adjective has the same gender, number, and case as the subject of the verb.
- 24 Predicate nouns and predicate adjectives, with verbs in the passive voice, agree with their subjects in accordance with paragraphs 16 and 17.
- 30 The direct object of a verb is in the accusative case.
- 33 Place in which is regularly expressed by the ablative, with the Latin preposition in.
- 44 The personal agent with a passive verb is expressed by the ablative with ab or ā. Ab must be used before words beginning with a vowel or h.
- 56 An appositive agrees in case with the noun or pronoun that it explains.
- 64 The indirect object of a verb is in the dative case.
- 93 An adjective agrees with its noun in gender, number, and case.
- 115 The means or instrument of an action is expressed by the ablative without a preposition.
- 150 The ablative is used with the preposition cum to denote accompaniment.
- 169 In Latin, possession or ownership may be expressed by the dative with some form of sum.
- 203 The ablative is used with or without a preposition to express the time within which an action occurs.
- 227 Duration of time is expressed by the accusative case.
- 246 Extent of space, like duration of time, is expressed by the accusative case.

- 250 A relative pronoun agrees with its antecedent in gender and number, but the case of the relative is determined by its use in its own clause.
- 254 Cause may be expressed by the ablative without a preposition.
- 319 An infinitive is required with dēbeō, iubeō, and certain other Latin verbs, just as with the corresponding English verbs.
- 320 A noun or pronoun used as the subject of an infinitive must be in the accusative case.
- 341 An independent (declarative) statement used as the direct object of a verb of saying, telling, hoping, knowing, thinking, believing or perceiving, has its verb in the infinitive with subject accusative.
- 348 Masculine and feminine nouns of the third declension ending in -is that have the same number of syllables in the nominative and the genitive singular (cīvis), nouns of one syllable ending in -s preceded by a consonant (urbs), and a few others, are "i-stems."
- 385 The amount, or degree, of difference between objects is expressed by the ablative without a preposition, as multō brevior, (by much shorter).
- 390 The dative is used with adjectives that denote likeness, usefulness, fitness, friendliness, and their opposites, also nearness. Similis governs genitive when it means "the likeness."
- 516 The manner in which an action is performed is expressed by the ablative with the preposition cum. Cum may be omitted when there is an adjective. (But cum is not used to express manner with modō even with an adjective.)
- 520 The ablative, without a preposition, is used to show in what respect, or particular, a thing is true.
- 582 In indirect statement, the action expressed by the present tense of an infinitive is represented as taking place at the same time as the saying (thinking, knowing, etc.); the action of the future tense of the infinitive is represented as about to take place after the saying; the action of the perfect as already having taken place before the saying.

- 590 Purpose may be expressed by the subjunctive, affirmatively with ut, negatively with nē. The present subjunctive is used in dependence upon a present, future, or future perfect indicative; the imperfect subjunctive in dependence upon the imperfect, perfect, or pluperfect.
- 592 Result is expressed by the subjunctive, affirmatively with ut, negatively with ut nōn. In tense, the subjunctives commonly follow the rule for purpose (590).
- 597 Cum, when, requires the imperfect and the pluperfect subjunctive to denote the circumstances under which an action or event occurred in past time.
- 611 Primary tenses of the indicative in an independent clause must be followed by primary tenses of the subjunctive in the dependent clause, and secondary tenses of the indicative must be followed by secondary tenses of the subjunctive.
